

Reuther Sees Early Strike Settlement

DETROIT (AP) — Walter P. Reuther said Thursday his United Auto Workers Union has worked out a plan with General Motors Corp. which he said should lead to quick settlement of 24 local strikes blocking full production at the giant auto company.

The plan, approved by the union's General Motors Council in a brisk 45-minute session, will bring officers of the striking locals to Detroit to complete negotiations with top officials of the company and international representatives of the union.

Reuther said this new approach was evolved at a midnight meeting of the International Executive Board of the UAW and accepted by GM as a "sensible and realistic approach" to the problems.

The union and GM reached agreement Wednesday on national aspects of a three-year contract, wrapping up noneconomic provisions in a final 25-hour bargaining session.

The union's GM council accepted the national contract by a wide margin, then surprised both union officials and GM by demanding authorization for a companywide strike to support locals with grievances still unsettled.

The union's international board refused. Instead, the board came up with what it called "the new approach" and submitted it to the council.

Inquest Set In Death Of Secretary

NDOLA, Northern Rhodesia, (AP) — Rhodesian authorities will hold a public inquest into the deaths of Dag Hammarskjöld and 14 others who died with him in Monday's air crash, officials announced Thursday night.

The inquest will be held only after a detailed post-mortem examination is complete. A government spokesman said this is unlikely to be achieved before Sunday.

Northern Rhodesia, a British protectorate, follows the English system in which a coroner holds a full court of inquiry to establish the cause of all cases of violent death.

In cases of this kind, the coroner usually calls for evidence of identification, medical evidence on the victims' injuries, and technical evidence on reasons for the crash.

The official investigation into the cause of the crash is not complete but informed sources said any suggestion of sabotage or attack has been ruled out.

Permanent Status Voted Peace Corps

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress voted permanent status for the Peace Corps Thursday as President Kennedy had requested. Both House and Senate passed the bill and sent it to Kennedy for his signature.

Still undecided, though, is whether the corps will get the $40 million Kennedy sought for its first year of operations. The money question was being ironed out, along with knotty foreign aid fund problems, by a Senate-House conference committee.

The House acted first Thursday on a roll-call vote of 253-78 after opponents exhausted technical objections that had held up final action for several days.

The Senate approved the Peace Corps bill on a voice vote, by Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., shouting, "No."

Curtis protested that the bill did not require Peace Corps members to be proficient in the languages of the countries to which they would be sent.

The compromise bill, worked out by a House-Senate committee after the two branches passed different versions, puts a ceiling of 275 on the number of administrative employees in the corps' Washington headquarters. And it limits to 20 the number of super-grade officials who may draw salaries above regular civil service scales.

Hurricane Esther Simmers Down; Damage Not Severe

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hurricane Esther dwindled toward obscurity Thursday night without ever touching the American mainland. The hot tropic fury with which she once menaced the Eastern seaboard was cooled by the North Atlantic climate.

The Boston Weather Bureau in its latest advisory said: "What was once Hurricane Esther has weakened during the past six hours and has now become a tropical storm."

The big storm remained out to sea as she had for most of the length of the East Coast. As a result, she spent her greatest force over open water and damage was relatively slight.

Earlier, it had appeared that Esther would make her first landfall at Cape Cod. But the Weather Bureau lowered hurricane warnings and replaced them with gale warnings from Long Island to Eastport, Maine. The bureau said the gradual eastward drift of the storm "will take the center south of Cape Cod during the storm" "will take the center south of Cape Cod during the night."

Once past the cape, the storm was expected to skirt the Maine coast and eventually blow itself out in the Atlantic.

The storm's forward movement slowed, peak winds diminished to 60 to 70 m.p.h. and the frontal sweep of her gale winds narrowed.

The storm originally aimed at the United States mainland at Cape Hatteras, North Carolina. But Wednesday it turned parallel to that area and began moving north-northeast about 100 miles at sea. Heavy rains and gale winds from the hurricane's fringe caused some damage, which was heaviest in low-lying coastal areas.

There were no deaths reported as a result of Esther—a sharp contrast to a 1938 hurricane that on this same date 23 years ago claimed 588 lives and devastated a vast New England area.

Esther's effects ashore were described in some areas as less than that of the average northeaster. Nantucket islanders reported they suffer more from the periodic gales to which the island is exposed.

Nevertheless, over an extended coastal area trees were uprooted, power lines downed, highways flooded, telephones knocked out. There were air traffic delays and minor interruptions in some commuter rail lines linking New York and New Jersey.

However, the big cities of the Eastern seaboard below New England—Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York—escaped serious damage, although more than an inch of rain soaked some of them.

Hurricane Esther's forward rate of movement dropped from a peak of 18 m.p.h. to 10 after it passed off Montauk Point, Long Island, and Block Island, R.I. Montauk, on the tip of Long Island, reported 90 m.p.h. gusts as the storm passed by at sea.

Florida meteorologists, by necessity hurricane experts, said the dallying rate of its forward movement exposed the big storm to the cooling waters of the North Atlantic and thus cost it some of its power.

Winds in the center of the storm—once clocked at nearly 150 m.p.h.—fell off to 100, and the breadth of the gale winds dropped slightly from an earlier 500-mile span.

Medic Refutes Journalist's Statement On Gen. Walker

AUGSBURG, Germany (AP)—A U.S. Army doctor refused Thursday to back up a journalist's claim that medical examinations had shown Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker was suffering from a brain tumor last winter.

The doctor, Capt. Herbert Caplan, who examined Walker last November, told a German court. "I am satisfied Gen. Walker was in good health."

He was a witness in the trial of reporter Siegfried Naujocks, who is charged with slandering the general by telling two soldiers that the general behaved erratically because he had a brain tumor.

Caplan said Walker was examined at an Army hospital in Munich last Nov. 2 and found to have a slight slurring of speech, a controversial speech the general and slight draw to the left side of his face. However, he said the general was much improved the next day and was finally discharged after a four-hour examination and consultation.

The doctor said a tumor could be diagnosed only by more complete examination than was given Walker.

Jaujocks is employed by the Overseas Weekly, a privately owned paper published for U.S. servicemen abroad.

He testified that the paper had been requested by Walker's public information officer not to report a controversial speech the general had made. In the speech, Naujocks said, the general had called former President Harry S. Truman and other prominent American political figures "definitely pink."

Naujocks said the newspaper had agreed to withhold the story provided the general stopped political activity, and only published it last April in connection with a report that the general had injected John Birch Society material into his troop information program.

The report set off an Army investigation. Walker was relieved of his command and eventually admonished.

Naujocks is being tried on a complaint originally filed by Walker last January.

Foreign Aid Talks Stymied In Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate and House conferees broke off talks on President Kennedy's foreign aid appropriation bill Thursday after their second fruitless attempt to reach a compromise.

The apparent stalemate threatened to upset leaders' hopes of adjourning Congress this Saturday.

Rep. Otto Passman, D-La., chairman of the House conferees, ended an afternoon session that lasted nearly 2½ hours by calling for an indefinite recess in the negotiations.

While efforts likely will be made to arrange another conference Friday both Passman and Sen. Carl Hayden, D-Ariz., chairman of the Senate group, said no meeting has been set.

The afternoon session followed a morning meeting that lasted more than 2½ hours and ended in complete disagreement. Hayden was asked what was preventing a compromise. "Money," he said.

Eisenhower Says Courage Is Necessary

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower said Thursday Americans are a courageous people. But he added that many are not acting like it in this time of crisis.

"I deplore the amount of uneasiness and fear we express," he said. "We are a vibrant and courageous people, and I see no reason why we should put our heads down weeping all the time."

Asked about his suggestions to overcome fear, the former chief executive said: "I think we have to look at ourselves, at our own hearts and our own courage, and not give way just because some bully is threatening. Let's go ahead with courageous and useful lives and not wait for fate to overtake us."

Eisenhower did not comment directly on such problems as Berlin and the Congo. However, he did voice praise for the late Dag Hammarskjöld and say it is necessary for the United Nations to find a good secretary-general to replace Hammarskjöld as soon as possible.

Accusations Fly At United Nations Session

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)

—The General Assembly's Steering Committee Thursday brushed aside Soviet opposition and approved a U.S.-British proposal for full separate U.N. debate on a treaty to end nuclear weapons tests.

The United States demanded that the assembly single out the issue as one of great urgency. The Soviet Union said it should be taken up in over-all disarmament debate, and blamed U.S. policy in Germany for Moscow's decision to resume nuclear tests.

The vote in the 21-nation committee was 15-3, with only the Soviet Union, Bulgaria and Czechoslovakia opposed. France abstained and Mongi Slim, the assembly president, did not vote.

By an identical vote the committee supported an Indian item asking debate on voluntary suspension of tests without reference to a treaty.

The U.S.-Soviet clash on tests came in the assembly's 21-nation Steering Committee in advance of the Chinese representation issue. Additional hot debate is anticipated on just how the assembly shall take up the question of seating Communist China.

It is the committee's task to recommend agenda items to the full 99-nation assembly.

Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson, chief U.S. delegate, declared that the problem of nuclear weapons testing had become "far more acute with the resumption of testing in the atmosphere by the Soviet government."

"The Soviet action not only heightens international tension, it impairs the security of other powers and has already required my country in the interests of its own defense to also resume nuclear testing, but underground and without fallout."

He blamed the Soviet Union for the breakup of the U.S.-Soviet-British test ban treaty negotiations in Geneva, but said that the actual resumption of tests makes the need for an effectively controlled treaty "more urgent than ever."

Sir Patrick Dean of Britain said he joined with the United States in hoping that the assembly's main Political Committee give the issue top priority.

Valerian A. Zorin, Soviet deputy foreign minister, said he would vote against the U.S.-British move.

He charged the United States with heightening international tension through a buildup of military strength at home and in Germany. He said this caused his government to resume tests in order to perfect its defenses.

He professed surprise that the United States was pushing the issue in view of the U.S.-Soviet action Wednesday agreeing on a broad set of principles to govern disarmament negotiations. These do not mention an end to tests, but refer to destruction of stockpiles of nuclear weapons.

He said that the U.S. position raised the suspicion that the United States wanted to wage a propaganda war against the Soviet Union in the United Nations.

Arab-Israel Clashes Enter Second Day

HAIFA, Israel (AP) — Israeli Arabs in Nazareth demonstrated against the government for the second day Thursday. They clashed with police and shouted, "We want (Premier) Ben-Gurion's head!"

The outbreaks were regarded as the worst by Arabs living in Israel since the Jewish state was established 13 years ago.

Police charged the crowd with clubs after Arabs pelted them with stones. Two policemen and three Arab youths were hurt.

Thousands of Arabs turned out Wednesday after local Communist leaders called for a demonstration and strike to protest the fatal shooting of three Arab youngsters. They were killed by Israeli border guards Sunday as they tried to slip across to the Egyptian-held Gaza Strip.

The local party leader, Murray Jarhura, was cheered when he accused the Israeli army of discriminating against Arabs in border areas.

An Israeli spokesman said Arabs in Israel may leave the country through regular legal channels but unauthorized travel across armistice lines is forbidden.

The Arab nations have never recognized Israel's borders and maintain that a state of war still exists. Israel asserts that Egyptian intelligence tries to use border crossers for spying and sabotage.

Of Israel's two million inhabitants, about 160,000 are Arabs who remained behind after the Arab-Israeli war. Many reside in border areas and have family ties across the frontier.

Saboteurs Dynamite Transmitter

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Saboteurs dynamited the Algiers TV transmitter Thursday night and broadcast a voice saying, "De Gaulle, it is you who will disappear, who will fall."

The blasts wiped out a scheduled French program featuring President Charles de Gaulle.

The explosions, blamed on the right-wing European secret army organization, knocked out the transmitting antenna of Algiers' sole channel. They were followed by a voice broadcast on the radio channel by underground army officials including the condemned fugitive ex-Gen. Raoul Salan.

There was no identification of the voice that intoned: "De Gaulle it is you who will disappear, who will fall."

TV screens fluttered black and white lines as the speakers, introduced as secret army organization leaders, talked from a clandestine transmitter over the radio channel.

The explosions came just as a scheduled audio and visual broadcast on De Gaulle's stumping tour of southern France was supposed to start. There were reports that a 15-man uniformed squad overpowered and disarmed transmitter guards.

Kennedy Will Address UN Monday On Berlin, Troika

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy will address the United Nations General Assembly in New York on Monday.

The White House announced Thursday the President's speech has been scheduled for Monday morning, but may be delayed until afternoon by U.N. business.

It will be Kennedy's first appearance before the world organization since he took office, and it comes at a time of crisis for both the United Nations and the world.

The President is expected to emphasize a need for preserving and strengthening the international agency as a peace-keeping

Rusk, Gromyko Talk But Find No Common Ground

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko discussed the Berlin crisis for about three hours Thursday in a "friendly and businesslike atmosphere," but concluded without discovering an acceptable basis for negotiations on ending the crisis.

Gromyko is understood to have stuck to the publicly stated Soviet line of readiness to negotiate about a Berlin solution based on a peace treaty with divided Germany. Rusk is believed to have made clear that the Western powers require a much broader basis before they will agree to negotiations.

What the two men did agree on was another meeting between them here next week. By that time both will have reported to their governments and possibly receive new instructions.

Gromyko told newsmen that it was agreed to continue the talks sometime next week. He added, "We had an exchange of views between the secretary of state and myself. We touched on several problems in which both governments are interested—the government of the United States and the Soviet Union."

Rusk went into the meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel to sound out the possibility of a compromise settlement of the Berlin issue. Progress at the diplomatic level eventually might lead to a summit meeting.

After the talks broke up shortly before 5:30 p.m., Carl Rowan, deputy assistant secretary of state for public affairs, read a statement which said: "Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Foreign Minister Gromyko with several of their advisors met today at 1 p.m. for lunch in the secretary's suite here in the Waldorf-Astoria."

"Secretary Rusk and the foreign minister discussed a number of questions of important interest to each country, including the problems of Germany and Berlin."

"The talks took place in a friendly, businesslike atmosphere but I am not prepared to discuss the nature of the talks or the contents of the discussions."

"Another meeting has been scheduled for next week at a date and time to be determined."

Newsmen pressed Rowan as to whether the two men talked about the U.N. crisis brought to a head with the death of Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld. Rowan did not reply directly, but said the U.N. situation was among those "of wide interest to both countries."

force. Grave fears for the future of the organization have arisen as a result of the death of its administrative chief, Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld.

Hammarskjöld's death in an airplane crash while on a peace mission to the Congo was reported to have been a clinching factor in Kennedy's decision to go before the General Assembly.

The decision to make the appearance was announced last Monday, but no definite date could be fixed until now because of complications in the U.N. schedule growing out of the secretary-general's sudden death at the beginning of the assembly's fall session.

ABC, CBS and NBC said the President's address will be carried live on their television networks. MBS said it will carry the speech over its radio network.

The Soviet Union, a bitter critic of Hammarskjöld, is insisting that he be replaced by a troika, or three-member secretariat. In the absence of an unexpectedly early solution of this problem, Kennedy may be expected to present this country's views on finding a new secretary-general.

Much of the content and direction of the President's speech will turn on the progress of talks now under way in New York between Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

Serious After Heart Attack

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — U.S. Sen. Styles Bridges, R-N.H., was reported in serious condition Thursday after suffering a heart attack described by his doctor as moderately severe.

Bridges, the Senate's ranking Republican and chairman of the Senate GOP Policy Committee, was readmitted to Concord Hospital. The 63-year-old senator had been discharged from the same hospital last Monday after a checkup that followed his recovery from an attack of pulmonary congestion.

Muke Says Truce is Temporary

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga, (AP) — Battle-weary soldiers mostly obeyed a provisional U.N.-Katangan cease-fire agreement Thursday but the lull in the shooting may be brief.

Gen. Masako Norbert Muke, newly appointed Katanga military chief, said the truce is "only temporary," and accused the U.N. command of bad faith.

Declaring "I am a strongman," Muke said the United Nations is planning to rush troop reinforcements to Elisabethville. He charged the United Nations violated pledges to Katanga officials.

"The United Nations wanted to kill our men, not disarm them," Muke asserted.

Conor Cruise O'Brien, U.N. chief in Katanga, denied Muke's charges. He said U.N. planes had flown in food and supplies but no troops. Additional troop arrivals would violate the cease-fire agreement, he said. He added that snipers, apparently Katangans and European mercenaries, had broken the cease-fire three times.

O'Brien said short bursts of gunfire occurred near the post office building, near the Swedish camp and near the giant refugee compound where war-painted Katanga tribesmen have been clamoring for the blood of whites and other tribal enemies.

Apparently Katanga troops became alarmed by the fierce screams in the compound and opened fire on the tribesmen, wounding 12.

But signs of normal life began appearing in the capital of this secessionist province, scarred and smoking from eight days of mortar, machine-gun and small-arms fire.

Even before 12:01 a.m., the hour set for the cease-fire in an agreement reached at Ndola in adjoining Northern Rhodesia between Katanga President Moise Tshombe and Tunisia's Mahmoud Khairi of the United Nations, most Katangans appeared to have grown weary of the fight and had withdrawn. They quit despite orders of their white officers.

Firing which continued until late Wednesday night appeared to be only from whites shooting from rooftops and windows toward U.N. positions.

Acute tension prevailed between most white residents of Elisabethville and U.N. authorities who squarely accused the whites of fomenting trouble.

Bloom Charges Payroll Tap

HARRISBURG (AP) — Republican state chairman George I. Bloom contended Thursday Democrats "ransacked the payroll" to sell fund-raising tickets for the fall election campaign.

"The Democrats desperately need this money," said Bloom in a statement, adding: "Not a single employee was overlooked when the collectors ransacked the payroll."

The tickets Bloom referred to were sold for the Democrats' $100-a-plate dinner the night of Sept. 14 in Harrisburg. It is an annual affair.

"If only half of the salaried employees of the commonwealth bought tickets," said Bloom, "the take would have been $3 million and we haven't heard of anyone in the upper salary brackets who escaped."

Two Ex-State Aides Convicted

KITTANNING, Pa. (AP)—Two former state Sanitary Water Board inspectors were convicted of conspiracy Thursday in the extortion of $700 from an Armstrong County coal company.

A jury of 10 women and 2 men deliberated for two hours before returning the verdict against Andrew DiEmidio of Johnstown and Joseph Yohaggy of Ebsensburg. DiEmidio also was convicted of extortion.

Defense attorneys immediately filed motions for a new trial. Sentencing was deferred pending outcome of the appeals.

The pair was accused of conspiring to extort the money from Mr. and Mrs. Perry Falester under the threat of closing down their P. & L. Coal Co. strip mining operation in Valley Twp. in March and April, 1960.

The Falesters also have been charged with conspiracy and bribery.

State Motorists Seen Behaved Via Radar Check

HARRISBURG — State Police Commissioner Frank G. McCartney reported yesterday that Pennsylvania motorists seem to be more law-abiding since radar became a legal means of prosecuting speeders.

"All our troopers and substations report that state drivers are much better behaved on the highways now than they were before radar," Col. McCartney said.

He made the statements at a luncheon of civilian and military personnel at the Mechanicsburg Naval Supply Depot.

"Our new radar system is proving to be a psychological deterrent" to speeding and recklessness on the state's highways, he told his audience.

Radar became legal evidence against highway speeders in Pennsylvania on Sept. 1.

McCartney also said that the Pennsylvania State Police force has become "the largest in the country and possibly the best."

"We have staffed the force with higher caliber troopers, provided better training, procured sorely needed new equipment and adopted new law-enforcement techniques," McCartney added.

He cited the following improvements since he took over as police commissioner in January, 1959:

—Pay hikes for state troopers.

—An increase in the total number of personnel to 2,200 with 200 additional troopers authorized by the Legislature each year.

—A new state police academy at Hershey which he describes as the "pride of the department."

—And a modernized state police crime laboratory with the best facilities in the eastern half of the United States.

Clark To Go Behind Iron Curtain

By JOHN KOENIG JR.

Associated Press Special Service

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., didn't wait for congress to adjourn in order to attend sessions of the world bank and monetary fund at Vienna, Austria.

As a member of the Senate Finance Committee, Clark is an official observer with the American delegation.

After his stay with the financiers, Clark will venture behind the Iron Curtain. He will visit his brother-in-law, Frederick T. Merrill, the United States charge d'affaires in Bucharest, Romania. Also on his itinerary are Moscow and Stockholm.

Rep. Elmer J. Holland, D-Pa., is planning a meeting in his Allegheny County congressional district to acquaint constituents with workings of the area redevelopment program. He expects to have William L. Batt Jr., program administrator, on hand.

Rep. Herman T. Schneebeli, Williamsport, Pa., Republican, achieved what he regards as the ultimate in bipartisanship recently.

Planning to drive to Stone Harbor, N. J., for a seashore weekend, Schneebeli learned that Rep. William J. Green, Philadelphia Democratic chairman, also was planning a New Jersey seashore weekend away from congress.

Schneebeli invited Green to ride with him. The two journeyed to Longport, N. J., where Green has a summer home. Schneebeli drove on to Stone Harbor, about 20 miles further south.

Rep. James E. Van Zandt, R-Pa., reported that an atomic generator to be installed under the snows of Antarctica this winter has been fueled successfully at a central Pennsylvania laboratory.

The fueling of the new device is the first operation to be carried out in the specialized nuclear laboratory operated by the Martin Co. at Quehanna, Pa., Van Zandt said.

Bensinger Urges Fast Basin Action

CHARLES R. Bensinger, Stroudsburg attorney and president of the Water Resources Assn., of the Delaware River Basin, yesterday urged action on plans for constructing dams and other facilities on the river. Speaking at a joint meeting

"We strongly believe that the new commission must start action as soon as possible to assure the construction of the facilities the Army engineers say should be built between now and 1965."

"We also believe that as soon as possible the commission must act to reserve future reservoir sites. Of the 58 sites in the river, two are already probably lost."

He explained that he referred to Newtown and Hawk Mountain. Bensinger also said it will be necessary for the new commission to make projections of water use for key areas of the basin, particularly those now bearing the brunt of the population increase.

Representatives from 23 organizations interested in the river were given 15 minutes each to speak on the subject. Others entered statements in the record.

The record will be forwarded to the commission which will be named by the governors of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware and President Kennedy.

The annual report of the bureau was postponed until the Oct. 19th meeting when it will be read in full to the entire membership.

Rich Agreed Large Amount Money Stolen

POTTSVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Lt. William Stanton of the state police testified Thursday that John R. Rich agreed a large amount of money had been stolen from his home safe, but that he couldn't say just how much.

Stanton was questioned at length about the sequence of events in the late winter and spring of 1960, about eight months after burglars looted the safe of mine operator.

On trial is Lillian Reis, 32, one time chorus girl, accused of master-minding the burglary when Rich and his wife were on holiday abroad.

The prosecution set much store by Stanton's testimony inasmuch as Rich himself has said he was robbed of no more than $3,000 or so in cash and perhaps $17,500 worth of jewels.

The police and other state witnesses have maintained that the loot ran to nearly a half million dollars.

Stanton said he told Rich in an interview the loot was reported to be $478,000, and that Rich replied it wasn't quite that much.

Area Native Publishes Book

EDGAR F. Beehler, a Monroe County native, published recently a book of poetry. The title is, "Spiritual Poems."

Material for the book was started in October of 1955 when he began writing the spiritual verse. It contains nearly 600 poems.

He is a graduate of Stroudsburg High School, Class of 1917 and served in the U. S. Navy during World War I. His former residence was Bartonsville.

He is married to the former Elizabeth R. Brands. After his marriage he moved from Bartonsville to Bethlehem where he has resided for the past 39 years.

Beehler had been employed by Bethlehem Steel Co. for more than 20 years, retiring June 30, 1961. His prior employment was in the sales field. He has been active in church and Sunday school work down through the years and is a member of the Emmanuel U. E. Church, Bethlehem.

He plans to move to the Chicago area so that he and his wife can be near their three living children. One child died several years ago.

The book is on sale at the Pinebrook Book Store in Stroudsburg.

Committed To Jail

THEODORE Lee VanBuskirk, 30, of 75 Brown St., East Stroudsburg, was charged with drunken driving and committed to the Monroe County Jail last night by Assistant Chief of Police Lester Rice, Stroud Township.

The Stroud Township Fire Company was called to the scene when someone mistook the steam from the broken radiator as smoke and sent in the alarm.

VanBuskirk was traveling north on Route 191, just south of Analomink, when his car struck a culvert on the right side of the highway. After striking the culvert the car traveled on approximately 200 feet before stopping, Rice said.

Deferment Chances Slight For Guardsmen Called Up

CHANCES of a reservist or National Guard man to get a deferment are pretty slim, the Pentagon in Washington, D. C. is telling anxious individuals.

Since the heavy recall of reservists and National Guard units, the Pentagon has been flooded with requests on how to get a deferment.

Except in a case of extreme hardship—documented—cases only a few will be left behind when their outfits muster.

The grounds for deferment have been laid down by the Defense Department and is usually followed by the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Officers noted that even when no callup is imminent, reserve and guard elements are supposed to screen personnel as to whether they should be moved back to the standby reserve, which is not subject to call except in a dire national emergency.

Thus, the officers said, a reservist who holds a critical job or a student who plans to attend college should by this time have taken steps to get out of the ready reserve.

Some reservists in this group, the officers said, have been staying in their units and drawing drill pay while taking their chances on not being called up.

The Labor Department lists more than 80 critical occupations—from agronomists to veterinarians—rated as eligible for deferment consideration.

Also among those eligible are college students studying in fields that will qualify them for critical occupations.

Another category embraces men whose callup would result in "extreme personal or community hardship." Enlisted men having four or more dependents normally would be considered as meeting the hardship qualification, the regulations say.

But if you are called in, there are laws to protect you from various hardships. One guards you against abrupt eviction from your home, outright foreclosure on your mortgage or repossession on your car for failure to meet payments—provided your financial troubles stem from taking a pay cut upon entering military service.

And you are allowed to delay paying federal, state and local income taxes until up to six months after leaving service.

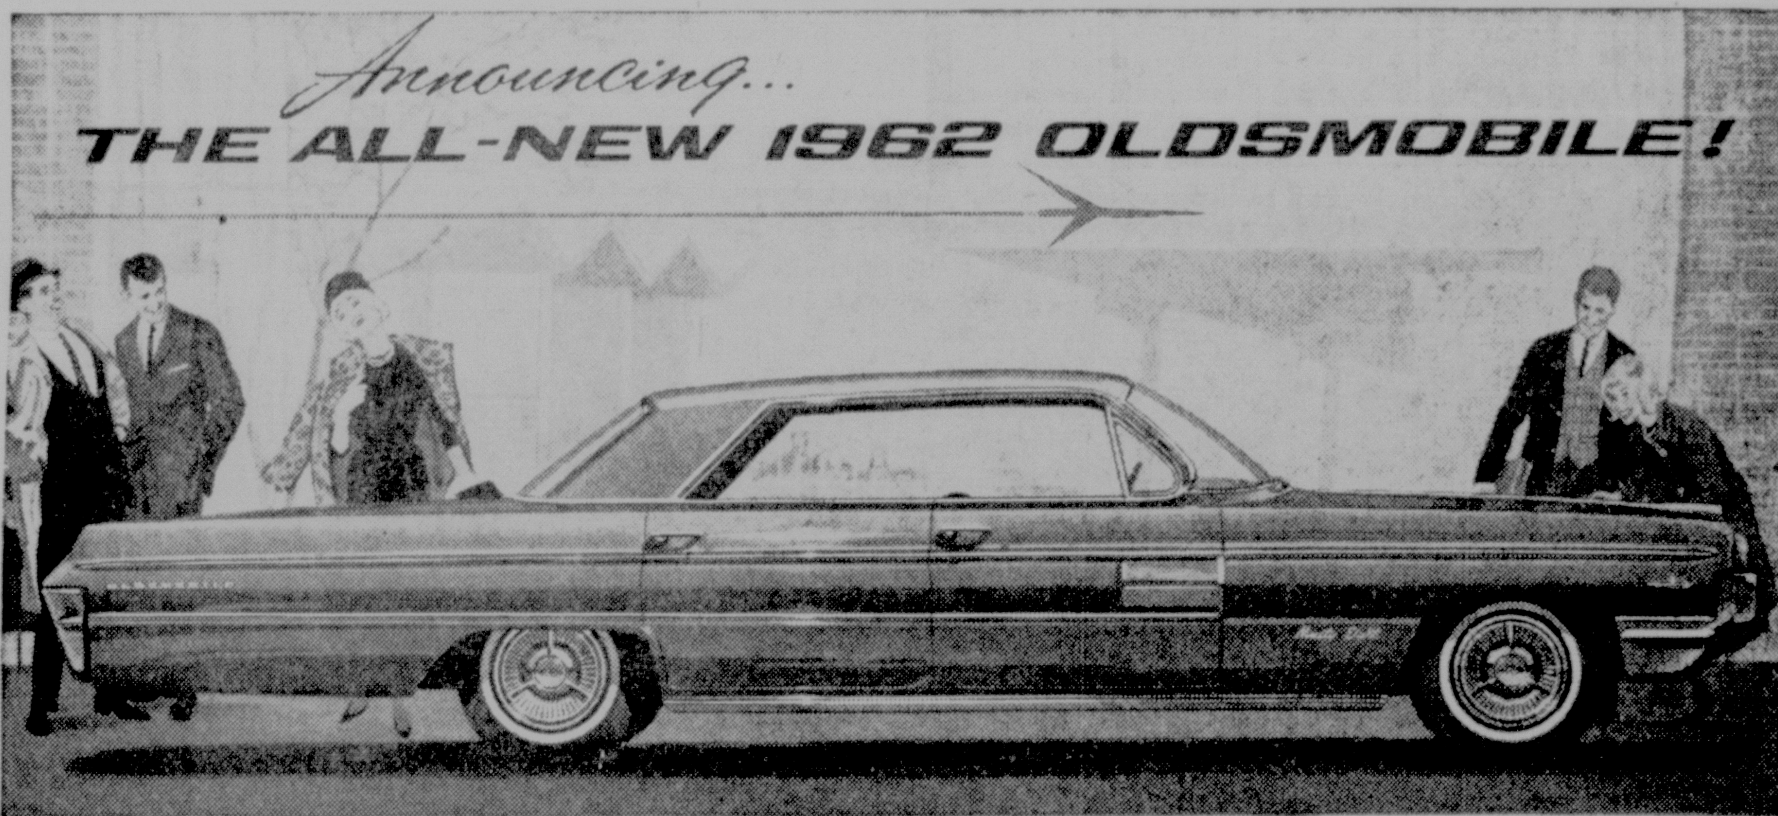

Earlier this week Albert M. Day, executive director, announced cutbacks in commission activities because of limited funds.

The Pennsylvania Federation of Sportsmen's Club has indicated it will review the situation at its annual fall meeting. The two-day session begins Friday.

The purchase of a monument is a permanent investment and an important family responsibility.

After nearly three decades of hard work and many set-backs, it would seem that development of the Delaware River Basin is well on its way to reality. It is a development which will have a tremendous impact on the area, both economically and socially.

As the long-awaited compact between the four states involved and the Federal Government nears its final stages of adoption, it is well for us to recall the early work that was done by a few individuals, the fruits of which will soon be enjoyed.

Back in the early thirties, it was a small cry that was heard for development of the basin, and many were the arguments against the plan. Its authors, however, were steadfast in their determination and gradually, as the years went by, other people and organizations took up the hue and cry and put their backing on the plan.

Things were still moving slowly on that eventful day in August, 1955, when Hurricanes Diane and Connie made their devastating visit and all people in the area were made acutely aware of the need for control of the mighty Delaware. The plight of the area at that time drew national attention, and impetus was added to the cause.

Now, more than six years later, the end seems to be in sight, and the goal of those early dreamers will be accomplished. In the meantime, many other facets have been added to the plan, not the least of them being the possibility of a national recreation area around the proposed reservoir, a project which will add immensely to the steadily-growing resort area which the Poconos have always enjoyed.

Our area is well on its way to bigger and better things. We are going places.

Free Food Handouts

Pennsylvania's free food rolls have grown amazingly since the Kennedy Administration took office and took steps to increase the menu with more and tastier foods.

By President Kennedy's order, the list has been expanded by the addition of meat, butter, cheese, beans, peanut butter and oatmeal. And so have the rolls of recipients — they have more than doubled, to 814,148 by June, 1961.

That is considerably more than the 472,000 unemployed counted for Pennsylvania last June. Eligible for free food are reliefers, unemployed and those on low incomes.

And at that rate, 7.2 per cent of Pennsylvania's population was receiving free Government food. In neighboring West Virginia, where the unemployment problem is even worse, 16 per cent of the population was receiving free food last June. In the nation as a whole 3.4 per cent of the population, or about 6,200,000 were getting free food.

Probably no great public outcry will be made about the distribution of Government-owned surpluses to those whose economic circumstances are below par. But the Kennedy Administration's distribution plan is more than this. To get the items that fatten up the menu, the Government must go into the open market and buy the more choice foods which are not in the surplus category.

There always is danger in a free food program that it will get out of hand. In this case, there is the possibility—largely for political reasons—that the rules may be loosened to make more people eligible, whether or not they are in genuine need.

Allegheny County, after an expensive experience in paying the costs of food distribution, got rid of that function, and municipalities now bear such costs here. But with the list of recipients lengthening, those costs may become a major item with many communities.

Nobody should starve in food-heavy America, and if there are those among us who are ill-fed in the midst of plenty, we should remedy that condition. But that job would be better done through public assistance programs and other sure methods of measuring need. The free food program sooner or later will be in for a critical examination.

Governor's Pen Humming

Harrisburg — Reporter's Notebook

The Hum Of The Pen — Pennsylvania's official pen has been busy humming as the Governor signs down the homestretch in signing bills left on his desk by a departing 1961 Legislature...

Our notes show that as of mid-week he had signed into law 641 bills, wielded the veto pen 21 times and had 86 bills remaining on which to act...

How does this general law total stack up with previous sessions — say since the beginning of the century and the legislative session of 1901? Well, even with the present number of 641 signed into law and with 86 bills yet to be acted on, the 641 already is the eighth highest number of general laws in one session since that 1901 gathering...

The last regular session in 1959 (excluding the piddling fiscal affairs only session of 1960) saw Mr. Lawrence sign 791 general laws into being, along with 23 vetoes (as compared with 21 vetoes so far)...

"Newspapersmen are not turned out like Ford's on an assembly line — at least, not the top-flight ones. They are unique works of art, not cogs in a machine. When they go, others come along to do just as good or better work, but it will be different work."

"It is indeed fortunate that a man has so high an opinion of his craft and himself, Herbert Matthews apparently believes that he is 'a unique work of art,' which he may be, but that does not at all answer how we happened to make so many costly errors regarding Cuba, ending in such a cruel fiasco, Matthews says."

"It was, and is, a great injustice to two devoted and competent United States officials to blame them, as Gardner, Smith, Senators Eastland and Dodd, ex-Ambassador Hill of Mexico, Ed Pawley, the tycoon, and many columnists have done for the defeat of Batista and the triumph of Castro. I refer to Assistant Secretary of State Roy R. Rubottom and William Wieland, who is mentioned above."

If it is unjust to blame Roy R. Rubottom and William Wieland, why does not the Senate publish their testimony and the testimony concerning them? I have inquired a dozen times for this testimony and have been told that it would one day be published. Who has requested the Senate Subcommittee to refrain from making this evidence public? Is the testimony too awful for publication? Would it embarrass the State Department too much? Perhaps if the record were published, Matthews's various statements might be confirmed, or if not, there might be a serious scandal. Some day, the whole truth with regard to Cuba will be made public. It has not yet been, although the truth is available.

How many remember in 1921 when Elmer Keifer and Raymond Marsh were named manager and assistant manager respectively of SHS football team?

Dodgers defeated the Phillies 5-0 to go 1 1/2 games out in front in the red hot race for the National league pennant.

How many remember reading "Major Hoople at The Old Boarding House?"

Pennsylvania's good citizens feel extra good and to thoroughly appreciate the fact that they are living in a 'free society,' it is perhaps worth noting that since the turn of the century — again back to 1901 — up to and including the present 641 new general laws, a whopping total of 16,951 general laws have been written on the statute books by Pennsylvania's legislatures and chief executives...

"You'll Find A Future..." (cont'd) — Last week in this column we mentioned the issuance of a brief green and white brochure by Pennsylvania State Police titled "You'll Find A Future Here With The Pennsylvania State Police," noting that the PSP pamphlet was principally an informational guide for prospective State Police candidates.

This week PSP headquarters here took the bull by the horns and issued a really slam-bang gray and white brochure on the State Police, printing an 8x12 publication, 30 pages in depth — obviously for general consumption — detailing the half-century history of the force, along with functions of the "Constabulary," as it was once known, plus an interesting interspersing of pictures to illustrate points.

Anecdote sample: back in 1910 during a bitter Philadelphia strike the Governor was asked by the director of public safety to call out the National Guard... Snapped the then Governor Stuart: "When they have eaten up the State Police, then I will give you the Guard!"... Footnote on history: needless to say they didn't "eat up" the State Police... In fact the State Troopers handled the situation without batting an eye — a situation that heretofore had defeated the efforts of 3300 trained officers, heavily reinforced and on their own terrain!

The new "general consumption" Pennsylvania State Police publication is well worth reading — and incidentally seemingly would do well to become a part of every school library!

Up Periscope! — Shades of a coffee urn — what next?... Item on a recent "Daily Record" issued by the State Auditor General's office covering items for which bills have been submitted for payment: "Harrisburg State Hospital — coffee batteries — $3716"...

Off The Record

One month from now one of America's finest leaders in the musical world will present a concert in East Stroudsburg High's spacious new gymnasium. The spectacle, as good, if not better, than any star-studded Broadway production, is for the benefit of the Tom L. Waring Memorial Scholarship Fund.

The night, Sunday, Oct. 22, will also serve a double purpose when the gym is dedicated as the Tom L. Waring Memorial Gymnasium.

It is fitting that the man to officially stamp the name of Tom L. Waring forever in the annals of East Stroudsburg sports history will be Fred Waring—the same gentleman who will wave his magic arms to bring forth that same evening the kind of music all of us love.

There have been many styles of music that have stomped the foot, snapped the finger, hummed the throat of a good many Americans over the years. But, it always seems, they come and go like Esther and her predecessors.

This is not so when the peps, spirituals, semi-classicals have the Waring touch. There is no substitute for class. And, believe me, Waring's group has it.

For more than 30 years the name of Waring has been the southeast note on America's musical scale. And like old wine it aged better than "little old wine-maker, me!"

Oct. 22 will be our chance to see this great organization perform again. It will be primarily to see Waring blending something better than all the maestros put together. Secondly, to reminisce a bit about what a swell guy his late brother Tom was; and last, to be a part of a dedication which will deservedly keep the name Waring alive as long as there is an East Stroudsburg.

Try and Stop Me

Dean Martin, conned into doing his act for free at a charity banquet, was kept cooling his heels for hours while numerous big shots lured the audience into a state of semi-hypnosis with long, dull addresses. Dean Martin, finally introduced, woke up the assemblage with his first remark: "Mr. Chairman, I got drunk four times waiting to get on here!"

Herb Stein, Hollywood reporter, interviewed a curvaceous starlet there. "I want to be an actress," she assured him in a sexy, husky whisper. "Why?" asked Stein. "Because I have something to say," she declared. "What do you have to say?" persisted Stein.

The starlet said, "I want to be an actress."

The Allen-Scott Report

Policy Fight Over Berlin

Washington — A sharp policy dispute has developed within the Kennedy Administration over whether the U.S. should fight a nuclear war to defend the West's access rights to West Berlin or make concessions to Russia to avoid a military showdown.

The fight-or-surrender dispute has been going on at the very top of government for the last three weeks and President Kennedy has been receiving conflicting advice from his principal advisers in the White House, State Department, Defense Department, Central Intelligence Agency, and Congress.

One group of advisers, who appear to temporarily have gained the upper hand, are urging the President to make concessions to Premier Khrushchev on West Berlin rather than risk a showdown in which nuclear weapons would be used.

This group consists of Secretary of State Rusk, McGeorge

Bundy, special assistant to the President for international affairs; Walt Whitman Rostow, deputy special assistant to the President; Jerome B. Wiesner, special science adviser to the President; Paul H. Nitze, assistant secretary of defense for International Security Affairs, CIA Director Allen Dulles, and Senator J. William Fulbright, D. Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The other or "tough" group of advisers are urging the President to be prepared to use nuclear weapons, if necessary, to fight for the freedom of access to Berlin. They contend that a surrender of Western rights there, even if only piecemeal, will lead to complete disaster for the U.S. and our NATO allies.

This group consists of General Maxwell D. Taylor, military representative of the President; Dean Acheson, former secretary of state under Truman; the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Attorney General Robert Kennedy, and Vice President Lyndon Johnson.

They are warning the President that if he doesn't take this firm position and announce it to the world Khrushchev will miscalculate and try to seize Berlin by cutting off its lifeline — the access routes to West Germany.

The Decisions — While the President has made a number of important decisions on West Berlin, he still has not made the really big one — Should the U.S. use nuclear weapons, including the big ones, to defend Berlin?

President Kennedy has already made it clear that he is ready to use conventional military force to fight any blockade of the West's access routes to West Berlin.

This decision is not a clear cut victory for either of the groups of presidential advisers.

Both groups have indicated their support of plans to use conventional force, if necessary, to open the way to Berlin should the East Germans or the Soviets try to slam the door on the corridors or try to block an airlift. However, the "soft" or Rusk group scored a major victory by getting the President to adopt a policy whereby the U.S. will assert diplomatic and economic pressure on the Kremlin before resorting to the employment of conventional military forces.

The diplomatic pressure will involve a U.S. move to get the United Nations, if it can function, to condemn any Communist blockade of West Berlin.

The economic warfare will consist of the U.S. and other NATO nations breaking off all trade with Russia. The Allies will bar Russia and East Germany from two crucial waterways.

They are the Skagerrak, lying between Norway and Denmark, and the Dardanelles, Turkey's long narrow strait between Europe and Asia. The latter connects the Aegean Sea with the Sea of Marmara that opens into the Black Sea, on which are important Soviet cities and bases, chief among them Sevastopol.

No Conference — The "tough" group headed by Acheson and Taylor contend that the chance of this strategy working is very marginal.

They point out that it is next to impossible for the U.S. and its European Allies to exert enough diplomatic and economic pressure on Russia at this time to change Khrushchev's plans to threaten West Berlin.

This group argues that only a U.S. threat to go to all-out nuclear war will deter Khrushchev. They support the position of the French Government that there should be no Allied conference with the Soviet Union on Berlin and Germany under present circumstances.

President Kennedy is caught in the middle of his advisers. He would like to try to keep the "peace" by negotiating with Khrushchev, but he also wants to go down in history as a President that "saved" the freedom of West Berlin.

Behind the Scenes — The U.S. Army is being given intensive training daily to defend West Berlin against a Soviet-sponsored push, American authorities, on the basis of intercepted documents, believe the Communists may stage a full-scale "civil rebellion," using street brawlers infiltrated from East Berlin in its hot-war campaign against that encircled city. The riots would be used as an excuse for East German troops to move in "to restore order." The U.S. garrison in Berlin is being given relentless realistic training in riot suppression, in which part of the troops don civilian clothing and play the role of the enemy...

From the portable of Raymond Moley: "The President himself has established a sort of foreign ministry of his own in his executive office. Four or five alleged experts on foreign affairs are there, each anxious to announce or leak to favorite newspaper correspondents his own pet notions concerning Berlin or Africa or Red China or Latin America."

He means Adlai Stevenson and Arthur Schlesinger, Jr., who have made careers of Being Wrong.

Apologia To Explain

Herbert Matthews, an editor of "The New York Times" and its principal correspondent in Cuba, has written an apologia to explain away the various attacks made on him as a result of the Cuban fiasco. Matthews is entitled to his day in court and this book is just that. It is his opportunity to affirm, deny, to explain or explain away various charges.

Toward the end of the book appears this paragraph:

"I consider it almost an honor to be attacked by the Eastland-Dodd Committee, by writers like the columnist George Sokolsky and William Buckley of the National Review, by publications like The American Legion Magazine and the Brooklyn Tablet. If such people did not attack me I would feel that there was something wrong with my work."

What he calls the Eastland-Dodd Committee is the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee of the Judiciary Committee. This Committee has been holding Executive Session hearings with regard to Cuba. As for the "National Review," "The American Legion Magazine" and the "Tablet," the official publication of the Brooklyn and Long Island dioceses of the Roman Catholic Church, they will survive Matthews's satisfaction that they were critical of him. As for Bill Buckley and myself, we can well afford to ask Herbert Matthews to state wherein we have been incorrect.

For what I said was that when Earl E. T. Smith was appointed Ambassador to Cuba, he was instructed to accept briefing from Herbert Matthews who was not connected with the State Department but was a "New York Times" reporter. This is what Matthews has to say on the subject:

"The fact that I was supposed to have briefed Earl Smith before he went to Cuba came up somewhat sensationally in 1960, and especially in the Senate Subcommittee hearing which I have already mentioned. Arthur Gardner, who apparently did not approve of his successor, first testified that he (meaning me) briefed Earl Smith."

As I, not Arthur Gardner, am responsible for first calling attention to the briefing of Smith by Matthews, wherein have I sinned? After citing Smith's testimony before the aforesaid Senate Subcommittee to the effect:

"Mr. Sourvine. Is it true, sir, that you were instructed to get a briefing on your new job as Ambassador to Cuba from Herbert Matthews of The New York Times?"

"Mr. Smith. Yes, that is correct."

"Mr. Sourvine. Who gave you these instructions?"

"Mr. Smith. William Wieland, Director of the Caribbean Division and Mexico."

There is more to this, but what is significant is that Herbert Matthews admits to the truth of Smith's testimony and that if Smith was truthful, I was, for I wrote of this, not in 1960 but in 1959, Matthews says:

"Allowing for a sour note or two, this was accurate testimony. It was correct information and good advice that I gave to Earl Smith, and it was a pity that neither he nor the State Department based their policies on it."

Archers Await Deer Start

THOUSANDS of bow and arrow hunters await the October 2 opening of their 1961 deer season in Pennsylvania. The whitetails in the State are as numerous as last year, reliable reports indicate.

Many persons who engage in the challenging sport, sometimes called Indian hunting, prefer to wait for cool weather later in the season, when invigorating temperatures and autumn coloration will combine with the excitement of the chase to make the sport more enjoyable.

Whenever they hunt, this season, most archers will seek deer during the early and late hours of the hunting day and on Saturdays.

These are important regulations to be observed by bowhunters during their 1961 deer hunt:

The season runs October 2-27, inclusive. Hunting hours, all days of the season, are 6 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Eastern Standard Time. Sunday hunting is prohibited. A bow hunter must own a 1961 hunting license before purchasing the required archery license. The latter is available only at a county treasurers' office or the Miscellaneous License Division of the Department of Revenue at Harrisburg.

Any deer, regardless of sex or size, is legal game in this season.

Salvation Army Board Officially Meets Aides

THE LOCAL Salvation Army Advisory Board met Wednesday at the Penn-Stroud Hotel with Clifford Cramer, board chairman in charge.

Major and Mrs. H. G. Baker, recently appointed to this area as officers in charge of Salvation Army work, were introduced to the board, and spoke words of appreciation to all who have made them and their family feel welcome to the Community.

Mrs. Darrell Gehris and her committee were thanked for their effort in making it possible for 98 local young people to attend the Divisional Youth Camp at Forks during the past summer.

The board was notified that Patricia Van Why, from the local Corps, had entered the Training School for Officers in the Bronx, N. Y., along with some 75 other first year cadets. The new two year sessions as well as the new addition to the school facilities were explained to the Board.

A number of items under the various committees responsibilities were discussed. Minor changes and repairs at the officers quarters at 35 Stemple St., East Stroudsburg and the crowded conditions and inadequate facilities of the Citadel were brought to attention by the property committee.

From the youth committee it was reported that more than 700 were in attendance in the first week of the fall and winter program that got under way last week. A special rally day program is planned for Sunday with a goal of 225 set for the Sunday School attendance.

The board was also informed about the Corps Cadet Congress to be held in New York City in October with 15 delegates from ten local corps to attend.

One of the items on the agenda included preliminary plans for the Christmas Cheer program as well as a discussion concerning having the Territorial Staff band from New York City for a band concert here.

It was also noted that Brigadier May Adams, who was stationed in East Stroudsburg as the commanding officer some years ago will be returning and taking up residence in East Stroudsburg upon her official retirement on about Oct. 15.

Members present for the meeting were C. Cramer, Mrs. Edward C. Knoch, Mrs. Darrell Gehris, Mrs. James Morgan, Daniel Warner, M. S. Baldwin, Robert Phillips, John Brislin, Mrs. E. H. Wyckoff Jr., and Major and Mrs. H. G. Baker.

Kennedy's letter disclosed that he has been in correspondence with the club for the last six months regarding its policy on entertainment of guests.

"Although some of the language in your correspondence to my inquiry was equivocal, I had hoped that no one would be denied the facilities of the club merely because of his race," Kennedy wrote.

"It has now come to my attention that because several members brought a Negro to the club as a guest, a severe reprimand has been issued and no change is contemplated in the club's policy."

Kennedy said he did not challenge the right of members of any private group to select their fellow members.

"But I do not believe the action of your board reflects the feeling of the majority of the membership of the club. However, the board has acted and I must abide by that ruling. Let me say, though, that it is inconceivable to me, in this day and age, that the privileges of this club which holds such a unique and peculiar position in the nation's capital would be denied to anyone merely because of his race," he wrote.

N. Y. Lawyer Is Aid Agency Head

WASHINGTON (AP)—Fowler Hamilton, 50, New York lawyer and Democrat, was chosen by President Kennedy yesterday to head the new combined foreign aid agency.

Thus ended Kennedy's search for a man he feels can overhaul the whole U. S. foreign aid machinery and win strong support in Congress, which gave him a freer hand in helping needy nations.

Perhaps significantly, Hamilton's selection was announced on the eve of a meeting of Senate-House conferees to try to agree on how much foreign aid money Congress will vote this year. The administration is eager for approval of the $4.2 billion voted by the Senate last week — $333 million more than the House voted.

Burgess Hits Police Chief

BROWNSVILLE, Pa. (AP)—Police Chief Anthony Salvatore charged that Burgess Marion Klingensmith punched him in the face three times yesterday during a dispute over a parking ticket.

Klingensmith, 42, a former boxer, denied the charge.

"I know nothing about it," he said, "and anyway, I'm too old to get into a fight."

Salvatore, 41, filed charges of assault and battery against Klingensmith before Justice of the Peace John M. Jennings.

Salvatore said he was on duty at the time of the incident and was on the shore of Lake Wallenpaupack, and ended up and down the shoreline before plunging into the lake for a brief dip. They frolicked a few minutes to dry off, and then disappeared into the forest surrounding the lake shore.

Governor Trims Appropriations

HARRISBURG (AP)—Gov. Lawrence Thursday trimmed $399,428 from more than $42 million in appropriations approved by the legislature.

The governor vetoed outright appropriations totaling $27,500. The remainder of the cuts came in appropriations signed into law.

Under Pennsylvania law the governor has authority to reduce appropriations any way he chooses. The chief executive said he eliminated the funds either because they were not requested in his budget or they would affect the balance of the budget.

The largest appropriation approved was $18,517,760 for Pennsylvania State University.

Among vetoed measures was $20,000 to acquire the site of "Bowman's Castle" in Brownsville, Fayette County.

22 Certified For Urban Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—Twenty-two Pennsylvania communities were certified Thursday as eligible under the area redevelopment act to receive special assistance in carrying out urban renewal assistance.

Among other things, the designation means the communities will be eligible to receive more liberal federal assistance for their projects.

The communities are Altoona, Carnegie, Collier, Danville, East Pittsburgh, Erie, Hazleton, Johnstown, McKeesport, Meadville, Moosic, New Kensington, Pittsburgh, Pottsville, Rochester, Scranton, Turtle Creek, Washington, Wilkes-Barre and Wilkes-Barre.

Area Men Hear PP&L Plans

LOWELL H. Cross, advertising manager of The Daily Record, attended a meeting Wednesday at Saucon Valley Country Club and heard Jack K. Busby, president of Pennsylvania Power and Light Co., predict that the 1960s will see substantially more electricity used in Central Eastern Pennsylvania than in the previous decade.

Busby, addressing a group of bankers, brokers and other area financial specialists, also forecast greater economic growth of the area. He pledged his company's support of local organizations and state agencies in coordinated programs to bring new industry to the area to help develop the region in other ways.

Sales Growth
Analyzing projected company sales growth by category of customers, Busby said PP and L's residential customers will use 4.3 billion kilowatt hours of electricity by 1970, substantially more than in the decade just passed.

He pointed out that PP and L expects competition in the residential market to be "greatly intensified" during the present 10-year period.

He said the greatest prospect for substantial additional growth in the 1960s lies with electric home heating, which is also highly competitive.

Also attending from the Stroudsburg area were Paul E. McBride, local manager for PP and L; Robert Davenport, executive vice president, and Frank LaBar, president of the board of directors, Monroe Security Bank and Trust Co.; Howard Merring, president of First - Stroudsburg National Bank, and Fred Titus, manager of Carl M. Loeb Rhoades and Co.

Cadillac presents for 1962
the Masterwork of the Motoring Age

You have had your first look at the new "car of cars".

It's name is Cadillac—and its destiny is a place among the most renowned automobiles of our time.

Its new styling is remarkably clean and crisp and graceful—with a look of "rightness" in every line and contour and detail.

Cadillac's new Fleetwood interiors beckon with a jewel-like beauty. There are marvelous new fabrics and leathers . . . and new conveniences and appointments on every hand.

Engineering triumphs include independent front and rear braking . . . exclusive new cornering lamps that light your way around turns . . . and a revolutionary three-phase rear lighting system.

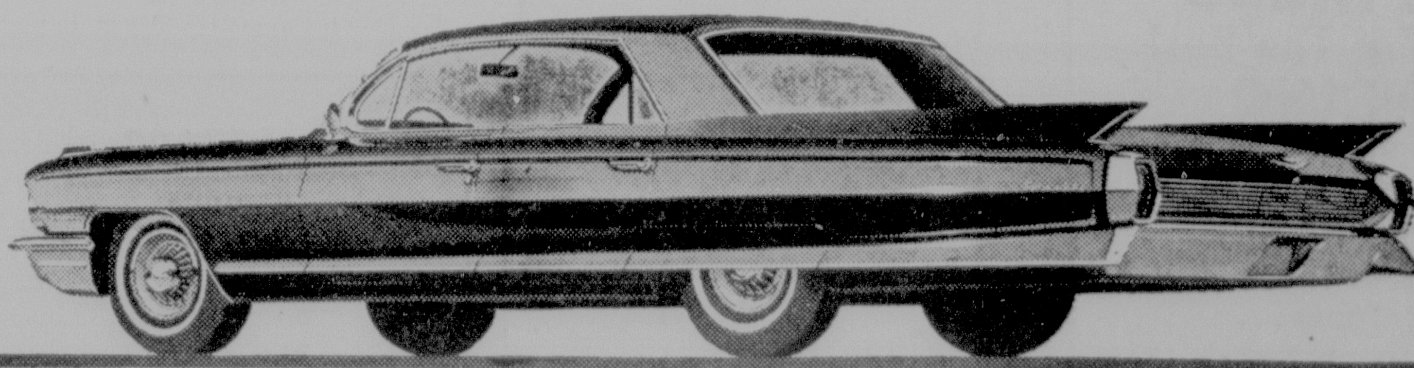

Yet, some of the noblest advances cannot be seen. They must be felt and sensed—performance that is incredibly quiet and smooth and nimble . . . handling ease so great that the mere weight of your hand puts you in command of the road . . . craftsmanship that is so practiced and so precise that the car has become a marvel of construction and a paragon of dependability.

These new Cadillac wonders are evident in each of twelve new body styles—and are available with the widest selection of interiors in Cadillac history.

Even if you have never before considered a Cadillac—you should take a journey in this one.

It's Cadillac for 1962. And we suggest you inspect it soon at your nearest authorized dealer because you'll be hearing a lot about it.

Issues Report On Monitoring

WASHINGTON (AP)—Most big government agencies permit some kind of telephone monitoring, a House subcommittee reported yesterday.

Officials in most cases "rationalized it as an aid to efficiency," the report said, adding: "No matter what the excuse, there is something mean and unprincipled in a government official's arranging for a secretary—or a transcribing machine—to eavesdrop on telephone calls."

The report was issued by the government information subcommittee headed by Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif.

It said 33 of 37 federal agencies surveyed permit some kind of monitoring. In many cases this consists of having a secretary listen in on calls to take notes.

In other cases various electronic aids are used, and the subcommittee said "many thousands of dollars a year are spent on the listening-in devices."

The report said 17 agencies do not always require that the other party be told that the conversation is being recorded.

"Peace and Plenty" by George Inness. Courtesy of Metropolitan Museum of Art. Gift of George A. Hearn, 1894.

Art Of Seeing

By MARCIA CLAPP

DO YOU know where this scene was painted? My nearest guess is a spot in Cherry Valley which has a winding stream and contour of distant hills similar to this painting.

George Inness who is one of our most famous 19th century artists painted this in 1865 on a canvas measuring over six by nine feet. This is one of the best loved paintings produced by any artist in the United States and is part of our national consciousness. It represents the fertile fields and tranquility of our national farmlands.

The setting sun behind the central elm casts a final glow on the stream and distant hills. Shimmering sunlight on the foreground fields attracts our attention to the figures waiting for the other farmers to join them on their homeward way after a day of gathering the harvest. Near the stream in the distance a haywagon is drawing towards the white farmhouse.

Form Strong Pattern

The rocks which have been cleared from the field form a strong pattern to guide the eyes from the lower part of the picture to the bridge. Receding lights on the stream behind the band of trees burst into the final glow of the sun. This broad and powerful composition handled with minute details achieves a poetic mood and the lyric grandeur of autumnal fulfillment.

During the decade in which this picture was painted Inness reached the full fruition of his artistic expression. He learned to simplify his masses, to create forms without exaggeration and to manage space with mastery and freedom.

Reveals Interest

His final phase of painting reveals his interest in Corot and Whistler after his European tour in 1870 which lasted four years. Although his dealer thought that European subjects would sell better his greatest

Adventist Stewardship Day

STROUDSBURG Seventh-day Adventists join the Adventist churches around the world in the observance of "Stewardship Day," Saturday.

In a communique through a church publication received by all local members, Elder W. B. Ochs, spiritual leader for North America said:

"The importance of emphasizing stewardship on this special Sabbath day cannot be stressed too much; in fact stewardship is something we should be thinking about every day in the year.

We know that the tithe is holy, that it belongs to the Lord, and that it is set aside for special use. Since it does not belong to us, we should gladly give it to the Lord that it might help support those who are preaching the gospel."

paintings are those scenes which he found in America. We are indebted to Inness, who left us this rich heritage of majestic landscapes.

Adventists will be reminded through their Church Manual, which sets forth church policy, that the tithe plan is divinely given, is the most equitable plan of church support, tests their fidelity to God as His stewards, opens the door for rich spiritual and temporal blessings, and provides amply for carrying on God's work.

Members will be encouraged, in recognition of the Bible plan and the solemn obligation that there rests on them as children of God and members of His body, to tithe faithfully all income from lands, business or industry or stock, one tenth of all their increase.

Dear Abby

Why The Rush?

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is 25. She is not an outstanding beauty, but she is attractive and intelligent. She has turned down a few good proposals of marriage. When I ask her what she is waiting for, she says, "Don't rush me."

Is there any way I can speed up marriage for her? I am 48 and would like to see some grandchildren before I die.

WANTS GRANDCHILDREN

Dear Abby: Many grandparents, who have pushed their children into marriage, see more of their grandchildren than they bargained for. (They are raising them). If you are impatient to see things hatch, settle down on a chicken farm. But don't pressure your daughter to fly the coop.

Dear Abby: I love to eat and I look it. I guess you could say that I am just plain FAT! Will jumping rope help me to lose weight?

FAT

Dear Abby: Yes, if you SKIP desserts!

Dear Abby: I found a "strange" bath towel in my laundry. I do not send my washing out, so I was completely baffled as to how it came to be in my house. One night last week my husband and I went out, and we left our child with a sitter. The sitter is a rather quiet high school girl who came well recommended. She asked if I objected if she had her boy friend over while she sat. I agreed, as I trusted her.

My husband developed a bad toothache, so we came home earlier than we intended. It seemed her boy friend was just leaving when we came home. When he saw us he turned scarlet, and left hurriedly. When I went into the bathroom it was all steamy, and I found a bath towel just like the one that was left here before. Need I draw any pictures? Please warn other women not to be as stupidly big-hearted as I. If a sitter wants to entertain her boy friend, let her entertain him in her own home.

Coaches Are Spectators Also

THERE WERE 66 high school and college coaches on hand for the East Stroudsburg-Slaton game at Memorial Stadium Saturday night.

And there was quite a gathering of college coaches at the East Stroudsburg State College-Millersville game the night before. Lehigh sent its entire staff to watch the game. The Engineers opened with Delaware and Bill Leconby and his aides wanted to get a line on the Wing-T, used by both East Stroudsburg and the Blue Hens.

Not all the humor is gone from major league baseball, in fact one of the better gags was pulled recently in a Minnesota-Chicago game at Minnesota.

In the seventh inning, the fog rolled into the stadium, making it impossible for the outfielders to see the batter.

When the umpires refused to halt the game, Twin shortstop Zolo Versalles came up to the plate with a flash light taped to his batting helmet. The umpires sent Versalles back to the dugout for more conventional attire but the gag worked well enough to have the umpires halt the game until the fog lifted.

1952 Pirates Were Good Court Team

Ralph Kiner, the former Pittsburgh slugger, who broadcasts the Chicago White Sox games, is not very complimentary of the Pirates' early 1950 clubs.

"We had one of the finest basketball teams in the history of major league baseball," says Kiner. "We had three All-Americans on our starting line-up, Dick Groat and the O'Brien twins from Seattle. We couldn't win a baseball game but we were murder on the basketball court."

Kiner calls the 1952 Pirate team one of the worst of all time. "We lost 112 games that year," recalls Kiner. "We dropped 11 of our first 14 games, and then we went into a slump."

To answer a few questions concerning the Maris-Ruth battle. When Ruth hit his 90 homers in 1927, he was at bat 544 times and compiled a .356 batting average.

Maris Had More At Bats Than Ruth

Maris was at bat 567 times in his 154 games effort and had a .270 batting mark.

Ruth fanned 89 times and walked 138, while Maris struck out 77 times and walked 89.

Ted Dean and Clarence Peaks may miss The Eagles games against Washington Sunday at Franklin Field. Both suffered minor injuries in the 27-20 win over Cleveland, last week.

Gregory Installs Awards For Outstanding Grid Play

COACH Jack Gregory of East Stroudsburg State College installed two new reward systems for his players Friday on the eve of the Kutztown game.

The coaching staff named tackle Russ Rogers, of Roxbury, N. J., game captain for Saturday's game at the Berks county school. Rogers joins seasonal co-captains Billy Race and Ed (Roadblock) Becker. The coaches will pick a new game captain each week.

The other award is a little less glamorous but one that will affect more plays. It concerns the awarding of stars for outstanding play in the previous week's game.

Only 3 Ways

There are only three ways a player can earn a star. If a player leads the team in tackles he earns a star and another star can be won by either intercepting a pass or recovering two fumbles in one game.

"The stars are for individual efforts not for scoring the most touchdowns or catching the most passes," says Gregory, who believes that defensive play should receive as much credit as offensive.

Moe Barber, a senior end from Dickinson City, was the only player to earn a star this week. Barber led the team in tackles in the opening game against Millersville last week.

Gregory made a minor production out of awarding Barber his star. A loudspeaker system was set up and one of the team's managers made the award with full fanfare. Barber was given an adhesive tape star to wear on his helmet.

59th Homer

Ball Rests

In Market

BALTIMORE (AP) — The ball Roger Maris hit for his 59th home run rested Thursday on a meat stand in a Baltimore sausage market.

It was never out of sight of Bob Reitz, 32, Orioles fan who nabbed the ball after Maris hit it into the Memorial Stadium bleachers Wednesday night.

"I feel this way," said Reitz. "The Yankees have everything, but I have the ball."

"I'd settle for a couple of tickets to the World Series with all these expenses."

Maris, who posed with Reitz for photographers after the game, offered to exchange an autographed ball for the 59th homer ball. But Reitz wanted none of it.

"That ball's the best thing that ever happened in my life," said Reitz, who is helping his cousin in the market until he finds a job.

"There is a lot of rumors around that it might be worth $25 or even $250. That's a lot of money for a man who's unemployed."

Yank "Subs" Beaten 5-3 By Birds; Maris Hitless

BALTIMORE (AP) — Roger Maris was the only full time regular to play the entire game for the New York Yankees Thursday night and failed to bolster his homer output of 59 while the Baltimore Orioles took a 5-3 victory.

Russ Snyder hit his first home run of the waning season for the Orioles in the seventh inning to start them on a four-run winning rally. Tony Kubek pinch hit for the Yankees in the eighth and socked his eighth homer into the favorite right field stands of Maris. Maris gave the 22,089 fans a farewell thrill on his fourth and last home run in the eighth.

Snyder's home run after Gus Triandos walked broke a 1-1 tie with the Yankees who clinched the pennant Wednesday night.

The Orioles scored two more runs on singles by Ronnie Hansen, Brooks Robinson and Jackie Brandt.

The runs were scored off Bill Stafford to hand him his eighth defeat against 13 victories, the last three by shutouts.

The Yankees were held to three hits by Fisher who faced only the minimum 15 batters in the first five innings for his 10th triumph in 22 decisions.

He had propelled another ball higher up in the same stands, but again foul, in the first inning and then fanned. In the fourth he hit a short fly to right center and in the seventh he grounded out.

Add Room Next To Your Kitchen

REMODELING may refer to altering an existing room or it may involve adding an entirely new room.

One family, following the tradition of the country kitchen, decided to add a family room adjacent to the existing kitchen.

In addition to adding the new room, they also opened up the kitchen by removing its exterior wall.

The family room addition is 17 ft. x 15 ft., but seems much larger due to the removal of the wall. The handsome room is paneled in pine and matching wood has been used for the plank and beam ceiling.

The knotty paneling, easy to keep up, has been used in effective combination with sliding glass doors and an unusual curved brick fireplace.

This combination of easy-care materials, plus a finish floor of vinyl tile, add up to a room that welcomes leisurely family living.

This particular add-a-room project was a do-it-yourself one, and what with interruptions of one kind or another, took about nine months to complete.

The materials costs, including the labor for the fireplace and the electrical wiring, were $2200. The cost also covers the two-inch Douglas fir roof decking and rough framing and the cedar beams.

According to Western Pine Association the type of remodeling project, if done by a professional remodeling contractor, should take about a month or a month and a half to complete. And, naturally additional labor costs would be added to the materials costs.

Another add-a-room project might be the construction of additional sleeping quarters adjoining existing bedrooms. Or, where a living-dining room seems cramped the exterior walls might be pushed out to create additional square footage.

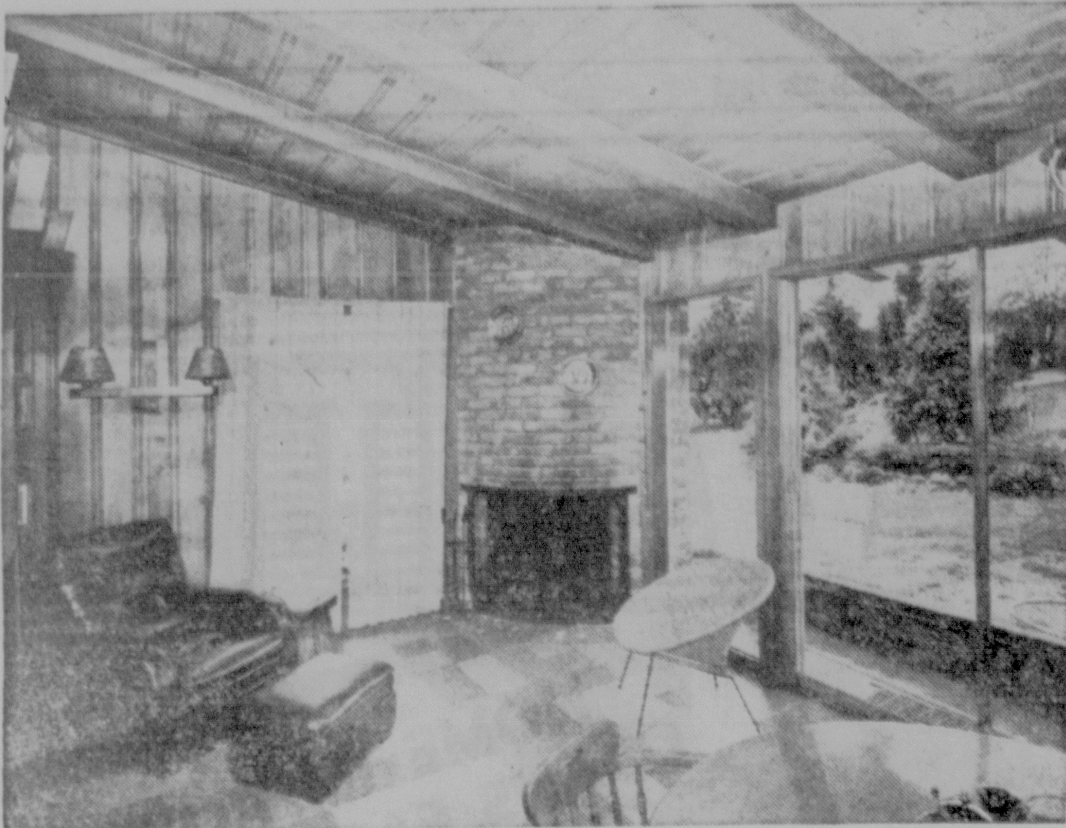

However, since add-a-room projects are not always practicable, industry sources suggest a general conference on the project with a contractor.

Money Saver

ONE reason why west coast lumber prices hold fairly steady year in and year out is because of the outstanding job of utilization realized by sawmills. As an example, many west coast sawmills convert leftovers like trim, edgings, slab and broken pieces into pulp chips for manufacture of paper, thus reducing the cost of lumber.

Wood Strongest

WEIGHT for weight, wood is the strongest structural material. For example, a simple tension test found that three per cent greater weight of structural steel is required to exhibit strength equal to a piece of Douglas fir.

TAKE ONE ROOM, add another room, subtract the intervening wall and the result is this handsome kitchen-family room paneled in finishable wood. An unusual fireplace for warmth and a wall of glass for view make this room a welcome addition to a home. The kitchen area is at left, out of view.

Postpone Roof Repairs With Aluminum Paints

THE aluminum roof paints and coatings introduced by the paint industry in the past few years make it possible to postpone costly re-roofing jobs for five to eight years or more. They may be applied to any roofing material except wood.

These paints are available in a choice of pastels and are of three general types: asphalt combined with aluminum; alkyl-based aluminum paints; and synthetic-based aluminum paints, according to the National Paint, Varnish & Lacquer Assn. The alkyls almost always also contain asbestos fibers for greater strength, while the asphalt coatings are made with and without these fibers.

Ask your reputable paint dealer which type is best suited for your particular roof and area of the country. With roof coatings as with all paints, it is important that you buy only quality products made by a reputable manufacturer and sold or recommended by reputable dealers and contractors.

In addition to waterproofing and sealing the roof, these paints can also reduce under-roof temperatures by as much as ten to fifteen degrees in the summer because they reflect a large portion of the sun heat. During the winter, this same reflective aluminum shield will also prevent heat from escaping from the house. This can mean lower fuel and air conditioning bills.

Before applying these aluminum coatings, be sure that the roof is clean and that any loose material, including blistered paint, is removed. Loose or blistered areas of roofing should be nailed down. Seal small breaks with roofing cement.

MOST ADVANCED HOUSE PAINT IN 50 YEARS

- Resists blistering—when applied on properly prepared surfaces.
- Amazing results on both wood and masonry homes.
- Flows on easier than any paint you ever used.
- Dries in 30 minutes—bug-free, dirt-free.

Badly damaged areas and large cracks should be patched with roofing felt, securely attached with roofing cement. Check all flashing and caulk it.

It is not generally necessary to repair small cracks, nail holes or other tiny breaks because these coatings will seal them completely.

Some of these coatings can be applied with long handled rollers

For Variety

TO ADD spice and variety to a wood deck, try fluting the ends. That is, let every other Douglas fir two-by-four deck board protrude three to four inches beyond its neighbor. The result is a saw-tooth edge.

ers and some can be sprayed. Check the label instructions for the best method of application.

Sweet Tooth

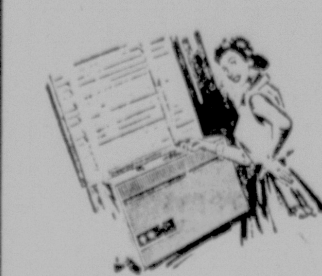

THERE'S nothing a black bear likes better for dessert than a young, tasty Douglas fir tree. Since 1945, West Coast tree farmers have lost more trees to black bears than they have to forest fires. The shaggy black beasts girdle the trees to get at the sweet cambium layer that lies just underneath the bark, thus killing the young trees.

electric home heating

SEPT. 23—OCT. 1

Electric heating just can't make dirt—it's flameless! With no fuel to burn, there's no smoke or smudge to streak windows or walls. Drapes and curtains stay cleaner . . . longer.

And, it's more comfortable. Cozy, uniform warmth banishes drafts and cold corners. Individual room thermostats give you the exact temperature you want when and where you need it.

Modern electric heat makes other systems old-fashioned. No fuel to store—no ashes to carry—no noisy pipes or radiators. With no moving parts to wear out there's little or no maintenance.

Safe, quiet electric heat is practical for an older home as well as a new home. Everyone can enjoy the comforts of this modern heating method.

Isn't it about time that you checked on the advantages of electric heat? Booklets are free upon request. Just use the coupon below. Mail it . . . TODAY! There's no obligation, of course.

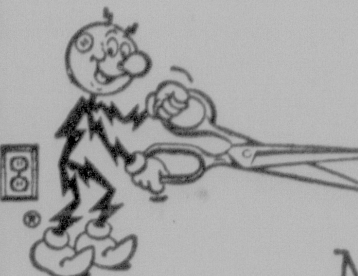

Did you know that more than 1,000 homes in this area are heated electrically?

This Three-Bedroom House Possesses Many Advantages

FROM the attractive modern exterior and throughout the interior, one has evidence of the best in contemporary home design.

The busy homemaker can be about her duties and yet observe the street area — a boon when small children are still at home. She is also able to answer the front door without going through the living room. A side entrance and extra lavatory off the central hall will save countless steps.

Living and dining areas are well planned for maximum convenience. Built-in china cabinets provide storage space and act as room dividers to create a definite dining room effect. Extra large picture windows in the living room will let in much of the sunny outdoors. The fireplace is located centrally for effectiveness in this particular model.

Bedroom and bathroom are at the rear half of the house for privacy. You will notice the door which can shut off this area completely — a real advantage when entertaining and small children are sleeping. Master bedroom has twin closets and cross-ventilation.

The other rear bedroom also has cross-ventilation and a large closet. Third bedroom, although the smallest of the three is still of average size and has a large double window and good size closet. Linen closet off the hall is adjacent to all bedrooms.

Bathroom is large and easily accessible to all of the bedrooms, containing a large separate linen closet.

Centrally located for greatest convenience is a large storage room. Heating unit and hot water tank are partially enclosed for neatness. The house contains 1,281 square feet of floor space and 13,477 cubic feet.

Exterior construction and styling is outstanding and will be a source of pride to the lucky homeowners. Outdoor storage for garden tools is provided for in carport brick supports. Truly, not an inch of space has been left unused!

This plan conforms to general FHA, VA and Building Code requirements. You can obtain the building plans and specifications with material list and plan study kit telling how to read plans, obtain cost and finance this home.

For proper drainage, the framework should have a pitch of at least one inch to every foot. Special metal flashings are available to be used at the point where the roof meets the house. These flashings have corrugations in the panels, insuring tight fits and preventing the passage of water under the seams.

The 4 by 4 posts used for the uprights can be set into dirt at least two feet — or set in concrete — or attached with steel dowels or headless bolts if the patio floor already is stone or concrete.

The dealer from whom you purchase the posts can give you more detailed advice on that subject to fit your particular need.

One more important point. Before you begin work, find out what building code requirements are in your neighborhood.

SEND $1 for drawing of elevation plus floor plan with instructions for reading plans & computing cost, to The Daily Record Plan Dept., Homograph, East Detroit, Mich.

ABOUT 20 percent of your income, after taxes, goes for food. But if you bought the same kind and quantities of food that you did 20 years ago, you would spend less than 15 percent of your income.

Pulp Industry Second Fastest Growing Industry

PULP, paper and paperboard have been rated the second fastest growing industry in America in recent times. In ten years, pulp output nearly doubled, and companies in this branch of wood processing have been investing about a half-billion dollars a year to expand.

Mills are located in 42 of the states. New York leads all states in jobs in this field, with more than 64,000 followed by Pennsylvania, Ohio, Massachusetts, Wisconsin and Illinois.

Tradition Factor In Home Choice

WOOD is regaining much of its old, intimate place in American homes, a trend of interest particularly during National Forest Products Week, October 15 to 21.

Clear lacquers or plastic are being more widely used to retain the natural wood's lovely grain and texture.

Nine out of ten new homes contain considerable wood, mostly lumber and plywood, and the trend to natural finishes increases a family's awareness and enjoyment of this warm, cheerful material.

Each finish wood has its own personality of grain and coloring. Among the native species, western red cedar and redwood glow with warm autumn reds and browns. Douglas fir, Ponderosa pine, Southern pine and west coast hemlock are more a soft, tawny beige. Oak maple and birch.

Douglas Fir Is Most Used Lumber Today

DOUGLAS fir is the country's leading lumber tree, supplying more than nine billion board feet annually. Southern pine is next at nearly 6.5 billion feet, followed by Ponderosa pine, white and other firs, western hemlock, eastern white, jack and Norway pines and redwood.

Oak is the leading hardwood processed into lumber, at nearly 2.9 billion feet, followed by yellow poplar, maple, sweet gum, black gum and tupelo, beech and cottonwood and aspen.

Gives Tips On Building Glass Roof

FIBER glass roofs for patios, carports and breezeways have attained considerable popularity because they allow the passage of a large amount of light yet block the transmission of much of the sun's heat.

Since the fiber glass is light in weight and can be worked with ordinary tools, this material has gained wide acceptance among do-it-yourselfers. The panels can be bought with regular flat-surface variations, but it is the corrugated panels which are the biggest sellers.

The corrugations not only have a certain attractiveness, but help to shed rainwater. They come in various colors, with green the most popular.

If you are planning on putting up a fiber glass roof, it is well to know what size panels you will use before the framework is installed. That's because the size of the panels will influence the spacing of the rafters.

If the joints fall on the rafters, they will be stronger and will not require as much mastic to be sure they are leak-proof. The joints are made by overlapping the panels at least one corrugation.

The panels are nailed to the wooden framing with special aluminum nails with washers that insure watertight seals. Although it is possible to hammer the nails through the paneling without marring the fiber glass, this must be done so carefully that it is better to drill holes through the roofing material to receive the nails. These holes should be slightly smaller than the size of the nails.

Beware And Be Sure

YOU DON'T need a crystal ball to know that paint is a part of your future. Whether it's a touch-up or a major repainting program, whether you do it yourself or have it done, sooner or later you can be sure of using paint.

But can you be sure of the paint you use? Sure it will apply evenly and cover thoroughly so that no painting time is wasted? Sure it will have good hiding power so that more than one coat is not required unless the condition or color of the old surface make it absolutely necessary?

Sure the paint will withstand wear, weather and washing, retaining its original color and durability throughout its reasonably expected life span? You can be sure when — and only when — a quality paint is used.

It's fallacy to think all paints are the same and therefore that one's as good as another. Not all paints are quality, any more than all horses are thoroughbreds, or all beef prime or all silver sterling. However, quality paint should not be considered a luxury.

In fact, if you want the most for your money — and who doesn't — you can't afford not to use quality paint. It costs about ten dollars for quality paint for the average size room. Try to stretch your paint dollar farther than that and you risk shredding it to pieces.

Unfortunately, some people do try. Under the misconception that all paints are alike, they are lured by so-called "special deal" paints, such as the type that is perpetually on "sale" at fantastically low prices. When they realize they've been trapped, it's too late. You can't very well get a refund on a painted wall.

When they discover that the inferior paint does not have the hiding power it was claimed to have, the only thing they can do is apply a second coat. Of course, by that time the importance of using only quality paint is obvious. While they've wasted precious money and time, things could have been worse.

Sometimes the inferiority of low grade paint isn't evident immediately. It isn't apparent until after a relatively short period of time, which is just long enough for the misinformed consumer to use more inferior coatings on other paint jobs. By the time he's aware of his mistakes, a great deal more time and money will have been used to accomplish nothing. Why learn the hard way?

The next time you buy paint, remember that the initial cost of the paint itself is the least expensive factor. There's time involved, either your own or hired labor. So think in terms of performance, not price.

Reputable manufacturers of quality paint use only the finest raw materials and employ the highest qualified paint chemists. Does it seem logical that these manufacturers can obtain first rate ingredients and first rate skill at cut rate prices?

A housewife knows she can't get cream for the price of milk; a businessman knows he can't hire efficient and experienced personnel at trainee wages. When you insist on quality, you invest in satisfaction.

Architecture Gives House It's Charm

FINE architecture details, outdoors and in, give this home its charm and character. A contrast of building materials gives the exterior a rugged but pleasing appearance.

A covered porch shelters the entranceway, and the vestibule floor is of slate tile with closet for coats.

In the living room spaciousness and livability are featured with two floor-to-ceiling window walls. Yet, there is plenty of wall space for furniture arrangement.

Fireplace location encourages family gatherings. There are also two hi-fi compartments provided for built-ins.

Kitchen and adjacent area is the home's highlight. Entry is from the living room, with an aisleway identified by a 12-foot planter.

This efficient kitchen with oblique counter and snack bar and work areas within arm's reach of each other should merit the homemaker's approval.

Remaining area is expanded to especially generous proportions. This spaciousness with adjacent patio is ideal for summer entertaining.

There is a recreation room in the basement. With an open stairway leading down from the kitchen, this area can readily become a part of the upstairs living area.

Effectively zoned away from the daytime activity rooms are the four bedrooms of varying dimensions. Each possesses wardrobe closets with double folding doors.

Master bedroom has access to the back yard terrace through sliding glass doors and has a private entrance to one of the two full-size bathrooms.

A bath with shower is located adjacent to kitchen and terrace area.

This plan conforms to general FHA, VA and Building Code requirements. You can obtain the building plans and specifications with material list and plan study kit telling how to read plans, obtain cost and finance this home.

Railroad Paints To Please Local Residents

THE LONG Island Railroad is painting stations in ten of the communities it serves in color schemes selected by the residents of the towns concerned. Bethpage, for example, gets white trim on red-and-gray walls, while Farmingdale will be green and white.

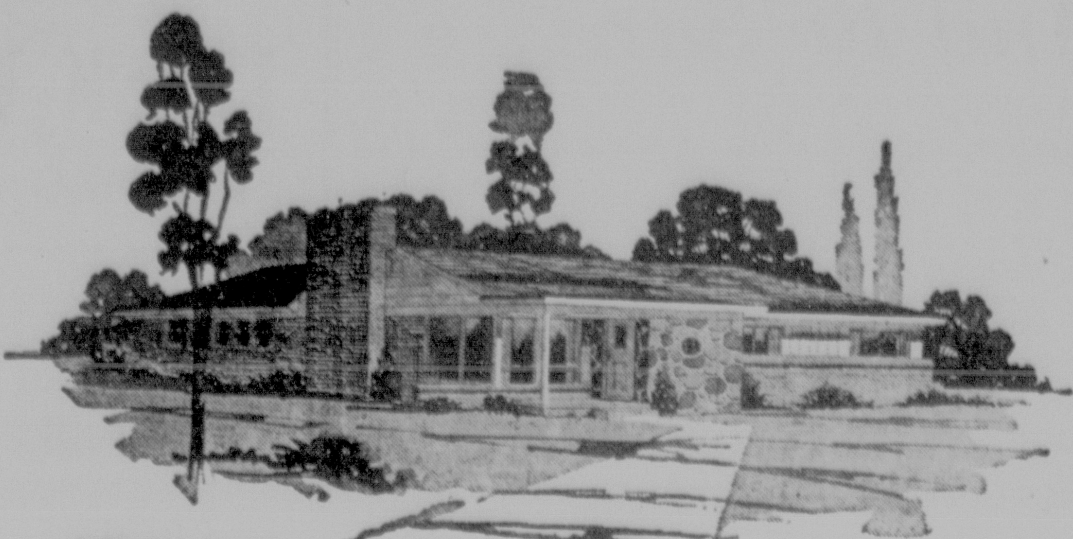

Other color schemes include gray with cream trim, green and white, red and white, and all white.

One brick station will have trim of black and gray and another yellow trim.

Best To Use Non-Rust Nails

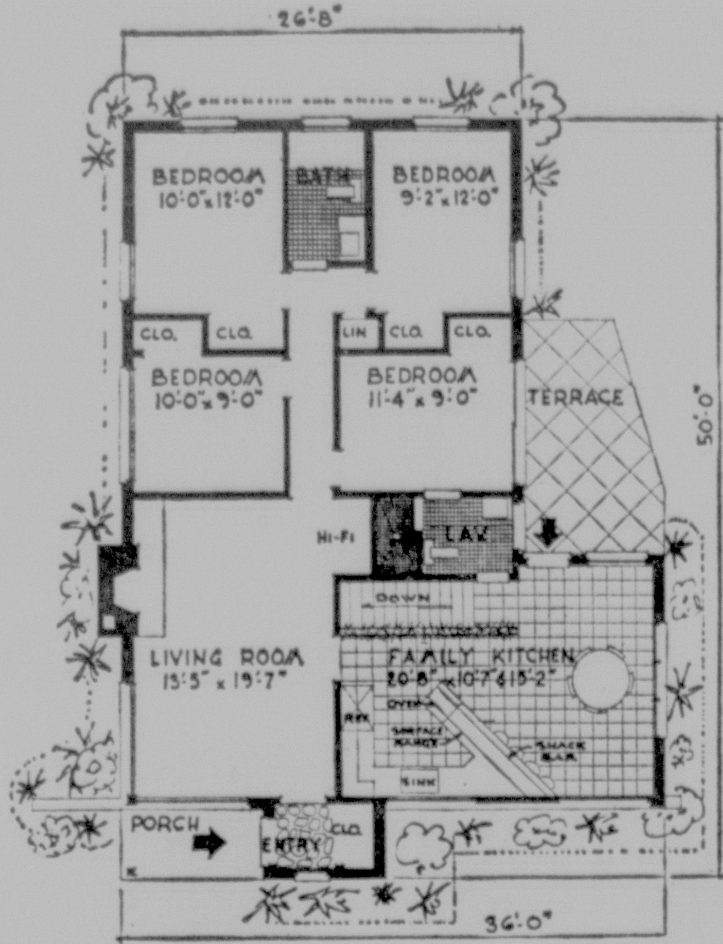

WHEN YOU replace loose or missing nails on wood siding, it's good idea to use non-rusting nails. However, ordinary nails should be counter-sunk, given a dab of anti-corrosive primer and then the holes should be puttied.

Flush nails should be spot primed. In this way rust spots will be prevented.

Bathroom Beauty, Utility

IN MANY homes, the most inadequately planned room seems to be the bathroom, the last room to be brought into the house. Beauty and convenience have been regarded as essential only in recent years.

But these qualities can be added to any bathroom at low cost, according to the Construction Research Bureau, national clearing house for building information.

New equipment has been developed in the last decade to make bathroom use more efficient. Old materials have been improved and made more beautiful.

And new ideas for bathroom design also have been evolved, so that today the neglected bathroom can be improved in many ways.

In proportion, the bathroom has more wasted space than any other room, the bureau finds. Very few have sufficient wall cabinets and much wall space is wasted while existing shelves have become cluttered and unsightly.

Shelf units with doors and drawers like those used in kitchens can add much storage space to bathrooms. These are ideal for storing linens and other lavatory articles and their tops can serve as useful work counters.

Usually the space beneath the wash basin is not used. A laundry hamper can be placed there or the wash basin can be replaced with a vanity-style lavatory unit with a cabinet built-in at relatively low cost. This lavatory with two wash basins can help overcome morning congestion, especially in homes with two or more children.

Special attention in remodeling a bathroom should be given the floor. It should be easy to clean, resist moisture and add color to the room. Many architects seeking a flooring material combining all these properties use solid vinyl tile. It is easy and inexpensive to install over any existing floor and comes in a wide variety of colors.

Condensation from bathing and showering usually is a problem in bathrooms and rounded cove baseboard at the junction of the floor and wall keeps condensed moisture on walls from seeping beneath the floor. A wall ventilating fan will help remove excessive moisture.

The bathroom will take on additional beauty if fixtures are replaced with recessed types. These also provide more work space and walking space because they do not jut out.

More space can be added by replacing small medicine chests with larger ones or by installing a second medicine chest.

Companies Make Pre-Primed Siding

IF YOU'RE planning to build a new home or make an addition to your present residence, you should know about siding that has been prime coated at the mill.

Lumber companies are supplying siding with a force-dried primer that covers both sides and all four edges.

Such siding takes the top coat of paint very well and the paint coat on the back and edges will help to prevent water from entering the wood and damaging the decorative topcoat.

Materials Suggested For House

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

MANY prospective home owners are beginning to get curious about the materials that go into the construction of the houses. A recent survey showed that more and more questions are being asked about the makeup of the floors, walls and roofs—areas which previously were judged by sight alone.

Builders and their representatives are discovering, for instance, that some of the queries concern a house's so-called "undercovering", known in the construction field as sheathing. This is the material which is nailed to the upright two-by-fours used to make the frame of the home. The final coat of wood siding, brick, stucco, aluminum siding or other exterior covering is applied on top of the sheathing.

The sheathing products available on the market today include insulation board, used on about 45 per cent of all homes that use sidewall sheathing; wood, used on about 30 per cent; gypsum board, used on about 13 per cent; plywood, on about 10 per cent; and other products on about 2 per cent. To repeat, these are the figures on the homes which use sheathing. About 13 per cent of the frame houses built in this country use no sheathing at all.

Should all houses have sheathing? Here's the opinion of Charles M. Gray, the manager of Insulation Board Institute:

"Some types of construction—notably solid brick walls—may be adequately built without sheathing, but all homes built with conventional wood framing methods should be built with quality sheathing. A frame home built without sheathing will just not be a strong and comfortable. Sheathing provides the strength which literally helps to hold the house together. Sheathing ties the wood framing members into a solid wall unit that allows all of the parts to work together in support of the roof and other walls. And sheathing provides the bracing strength necessary to withstand the forces of wind, rain, snow-load and ground tremors."

As the name implies, Insulation board sheathing has added insulation values which its manufacturers laud at any and every opportunity.

'Mortar Mouse' Newest Repair Gyp

THE National Safety Council issued a warning against repairmen bearing dead mice.

In an article for the fall issue of its "Family Safety" magazine the council said the latest dodge of the gyp repairman is to present a dead mouse to home owners.

It's a special kind of mouse, the mortar mouse, a recent import from Japan, which lives on cement and sand, eating the mortar between bricks—especially in chimneys.

Unscrupulous repairmen carry the dead mice to prove the reluctant customers their chimneys need mending.

Among the other schemes "Family Safety" found repairmen using to separate home owners from their money were:

(1)—A $750 fire alarm built over a fireplace, preventing its use until the $455 device's batteries went dead after a month.

(2)—Spraying lighter fluid down a chimney to prove that a home had a serious gas leak.

(3)—Hammering loose bricks from chimneys and handing them to the householder to prove the chimney is ready to topple.

(4)—Selling worthless or downright harmful fire extinguishers for up to $10. One man was killed when one of the extinguishers exploded in his face. Others containing poisonous chemicals.

(5)—Posing as furnace inspectors, ordering heating plants dismantled and finding them to be fire hazards, in need of replacement.

(6)—Bilking home owners of hundreds of dollars for elaborate but worthless lightning rods.

Aristocratic

THOSE of us who like the fashionable purple paint hues are aristocratic, highly cultured, talented and artistic . . . or at least, we prefer to think we are, for these are typical characteristics of people who like purple. Those who dislike purple, also dislike any type of pretense or insincerity, and are serious and realistic in their outlook on life.

How Does Home Differ From House?

WHEN you come to visit, do you say, "You have a lovely house?" or, "You have a lovely home?"

Cleveland Amory, the author of "Who Killed Society" and other books about the American upper classes, says there is a class distinction in the use of these words. Middle and lower class people say "home" according to Mr. Amory and the rich say "house." How about that?

Thus "Better Homes and Gardens" and "American Home" are middle class magazines while "House and Garden" and "House Beautiful" are for higher income families.

"Living For Young Homemakers" ducks the problem; you can't say "Homemakers." "Good Housekeeping" has no problem, either, since there is no "homekeeping." "House and Home," a publication for architects, offends nobody. (Shakespeare gave them that title when he wrote, "Eat me out of house and home." We've used the expression ever since for emphasis.)

Today the words are interchangeable but many people feel the original difference should be preserved with "house" used only for the structure and "home" the word for it after it has been lived in.

The N. Y. Times, in a discussion some time ago on this subject, noted that many persons feel quite strongly about the way the meanings of these words have blurred. One woman wrote to "The Last Word," an old TV series devoted to the discussion of vocabulary.

"There's a word that seems to be bleeding before our eyes. Warmth and meaning are ebbing away from our unique word 'home.' One now buys or sells a 'home,' even prefabricated. Shall we be in for 'home awnings,' or a 'home of ill repute'?"

The four experts held out no hope for her. Dr. Evans, the moderator, tied up everyone's opinion by saying, "There are a few highly educated people who find 'house' the better word for the structure, 'home' the better word for the social gathering and the warmth and those things that occur around the house. But this is no longer generally felt in the world."

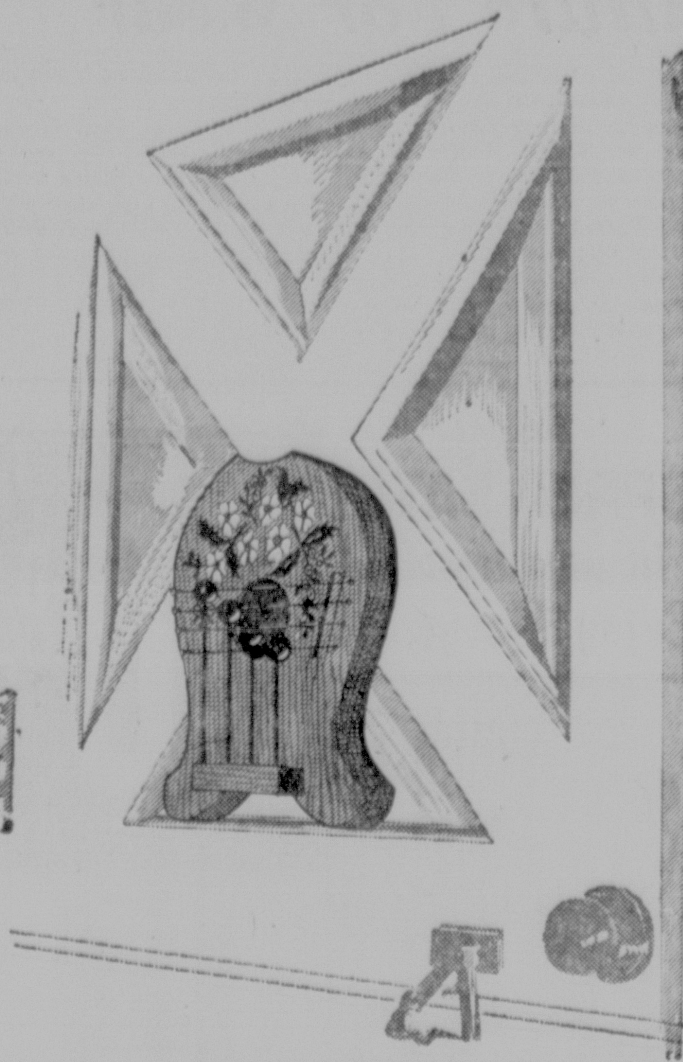

There doesn't seem to be any danger in the very near future that we shall get "home of ill repute," however. The last two books out on the subject were "An Orderly Disorderly House" and "A House is Not a Home." The last title sounds like a promise.

As a writer on the subject of houses and homes, I find very few other words to replace them with. You can't say "hut." Nobody has a mansion anymore, and both "cottage" and "bungalow" are too quaint.

"Lodge, tepee, wigwam, yurt, wigwag" are all words for temporary movable, or not very permanent living spaces, says the dictionary. "Dwelling, residence, abode, domicile" are perfectly good and accurate, but stuffy.

"An Englishman's house is his castle" adds the dictionary in an attempt to be useful. But this still leaves me with house "and home" again.

The definition for "home" is quite nice: "The House in which one lives." And that turns out to be the title of the column, a name thought up by a friend back in 1966 when it began.

Swedish Door Chimes Welcome Visitors

When placed on the inside of your front door, every time it opens, visitors are welcomed and start each visit off as musically as possible.

The full size pattern offered below tells how to make the hollow violin type, sound chamber; how to stretch wire across opening; how to hang small wooden balls so they dance over the strings every time the door moves. Everyone is amazed to discover how much music these chimes make.

If your youngster or church is interested in earning extra money, make and sell these chimes. They have great appeal and sell quickly. The full size pattern offered below permit decorating with professional results assured.

Memo To Builders

Less Scenery, More Closets

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeature Writer

WIFE who is too watchful of husband is likely to wind up without a new house.

No, Confucious didn't say that. It's a bit of advice offered to builders in a trade paper, The Long Island Builder.

The tip goes like this: "Use hostesses on heavy traffic days, but use matronly types rather than glamorous girls. Husbands keep their eyes on sexy young things; wives keep their eyes on the husbands; nobody sees the house."

This is a fascinating tidbit to file in your memory book under the heading: "Reasons why we don't own a house."

The builders may have a point. But we'll bet our last year's summer house that when a man gets to the point of parting with his savings, he's not going to worry about the come-in in the deal. And when his lady is that close to getting her own home she'll shut her eyes to the man's indiscretions—until he puts his name on the house contract. (After that, watch out).

A Happy Time

There is no happier female in the world than a woman who is about to take on a house. She's in no mood for quibbling once she has a foot in the door. That's an accomplishment in itself.

The paper suggests among other sales techniques to charm the prospective buyer, the muted strains of radio or record player, coffee or soft drinks in the model house kitchen, a handy swing in the backyard to enchant children while parents ogle, something cooking on the stove to make the home smell good, shades drawn if the day is dark, doors open if the sun is shining.

It sounds homey, but we'll put our house money on the seller who shows more closet space than a woman can dream up (and if they're departmentalized so much the better) such important-to-women work savers as washing machine, dryer, dish washer, enough kitchen cabinets to house her collection of portable appliances, a fenced-in area for small fry, a small room for cogitating, sewing, ironing or reading, and if its soundproof so much the better, a living room large or small that can be decorated for coziness, not broken up with windows, doors, stair-cases all in the wrong places, a good lighting system, a pleasant terrace outdoors accessible to the kitchen.

Even the man with three thumbs will be impressed with a built-in workshop and an accessible spot for garden tools.

Another important consideration would be to turn off the "extras." There was a time when you could buy a house with the necessities of the moment, at the right price. But these days a woman is wooed with an attractive floor plan, she approves it, and then finds out all the features that she can't do without are above the asking price.

Safer Stairs

HERE'S a way to make those treacherous cellar and attic stairs safer: paint a one inch white strip on the edge of each tread. This will make them more visible and make missteps less likely. For a neat job, use masking tape to mark off the one-inch strip and then apply a quality white floor enamel to the area. When the paint is dry, pull off the tape—there are the strips. One thing more, be sure to provide adequate illumination.

Keep Gutters Clean

NOW, before the leaves begin to fall, is a good time to install guards on your gutters that will prevent them from being clogged. Rain water—and melting snow during the winter—will be forced up under the shingles if the downspout is blocked. This water can enter the siding and cause paint damage next spring.

That goes for the extra bathroom, the fireplace, certain kitchen features, the shade tree on the front lawn, and perhaps even the garage.

Give these home seekers what they need, and you can call off the magic flutes, boys. All we're asking for in a house is one that keeps up with the times.

Paint For Heels

THOSE needle heels that are so popular with women these days would be impossible if it weren't for the research of the paint industry. The heels are made of a tough plastic which is rather unattractive in itself. The paint chemists have come up with tough finishes that simulate patent leather, calf skin, suede and a variety of colors.

Yellow For Safety

MUNICIPAL vehicles throughout the country may soon bloom in brilliant golden yellow as the result of experiments made by the New York City Department of Sanitation which found that by painting its garbage trucks this color, there was an increase in visibility. Increased visibility, of course, means fewer accidents, particularly rear-end collisions.

Tri-Level Designing Distinctive

HERE'S the very latest in tri-level designing. Luxurious, yet practical, its advantages are easy access to all the rooms, modern conveniences, and distinctive styling.

Suggesting comfort that only a split-level can offer, there's enough extras in this model to delight every member of the family.

As one enters from the covered porch the new trend in interior design is immediately apparent. A spacious foyer preserves privacy and permits access to all three levels. Straight through is the 20 foot long room with its magnificent fireplace and window wall looking out onto the backyard and terrace.

To the right of the entranceway on the same level is the kitchen and nook. Service zones in the kitchen will be a homemaker's delight. A planning desk has been thoughtfully provided in the nook portion of this area.

A lavatory separates the nook from the attached garage. The garage is generous in dimensions and adds a work bench to delight the master of the family. A second doorway leads to the backyard.

To the left of the entranceway is the modified staircase leading to the home's three master-sized bedrooms and family bath.

Huge wall-to-wall closets with sliding doors service each of the bedrooms eliminating any storage problem on this level.

The bath is only steps away from the three bedrooms and features vanity and separate shower and tub facilities. The linen closet opens from both the outside hall and bath.

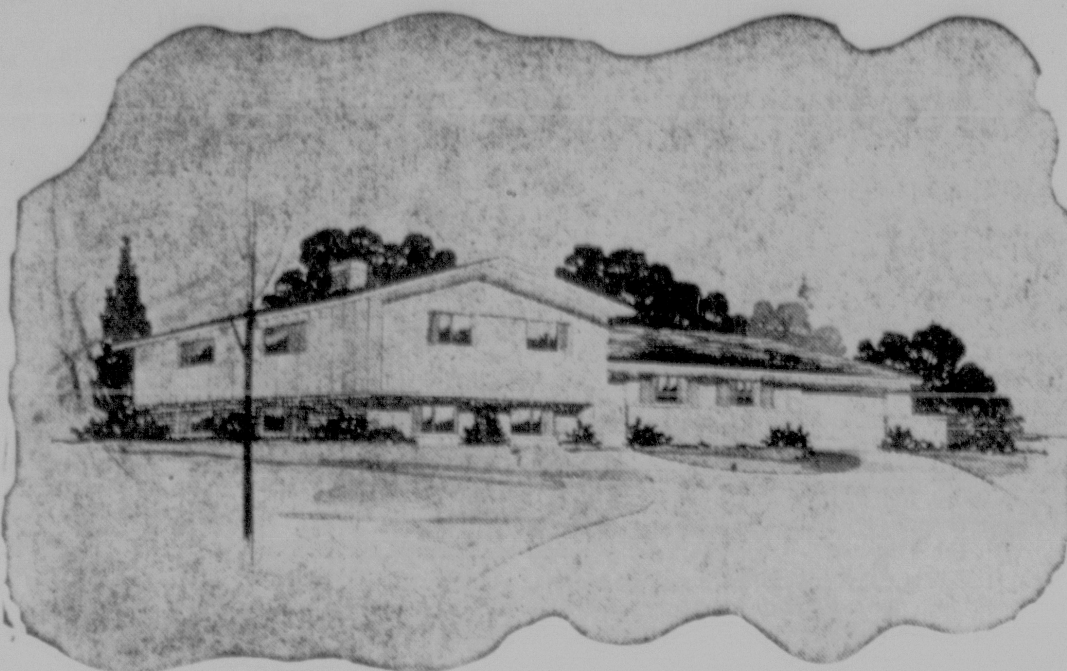

Below the bedroom area is the home's recreation room and sun-level facilities. Here, where there's no premium space, is the laundry area, additional storage facilities and utility fixtures.

This plan conforms to general FHA, VA and Building Code requirements. You can obtain the building plans and specifications with material list and plan study kit telling how to read plans, obtain cost and finance this home.

Protect The Roof Edge

IF YOU are planning a re-roofing job this summer or fall, have the contractor check the flashing near the edges of the roof. This is a good time to cover the bottom eighteen inches with copper flashing or waterproof roofing paper or felt. This will prevent water from melting snow being forced under the shingles and into the siding. Such water can cause the paint to peel next spring.

Household Chemicals Halt Mildew

THERE is no need to let mildew spoil the appearance of your paint job, since household chemicals easily destroy existing patches of the mold, and there are many quality mildew-proof exterior paints on the market, the National Paint, Varnish & Lacquer Assn. advises.

The easiest way to remove mildew is to wash the infested area with a solution of sodium hypochlorite, which is made by adding one and one-half cups of full-strength Chlorox or Purex to a gallon of water.

This solution is then brushed or sprayed over the mildew and allowed to remain for about five minutes. The surface should then be rinsed with clean water. If the growth is heavy, it may be necessary to scrub with a bristle brush.

Another treatment that is effective can be made by adding three heaping tablespoons of trisodium phosphate to a gallon of water. Familiar products containing this chemical are Solax, Oakite and Spic and Span. It may be necessary with extreme heavy growths to use both chemicals.

Unfortunately, this treatment does not give a permanent cure. If climatic conditions are damp and warm, a new set of mold spores — which are always in the air — start growing soon.

The only way to prevent mildew completely is to paint the surface with a quality paint that is specially formulated to resist mold growth. Such paints contain a mildewicide which kills the spores on contact.

Be sure, however, that you use only quality paint. Only quality paint has lasting hiding power, retains its color brilliance, and is wear and weather resistant. To be sure that you are getting a quality product, ask a friend or neighbor who has had a satisfactory paint job which brand he used or consult your established, reputable paint dealer.

Check Furniture For Wear

AUTUMN is a good time to check your furniture for signs of wear and tear. Some home "doctoring" may be in order. Here are some tips on how to touch up soiled upholstery and nicked wood.

To improve the feel of sticky leather, wash the surface twice with gasoline and allow to dry. Next, mix an ounce of lacquer and lacquer thinner and spray a coat on the leather or brush on with a camel's hair brush, being careful not to repeat strokes.

Shampoo the soiled upholstery with a good neutral soap solution, made by dissolving soap in boiling water, adding cold water and stirring until a thick dry suds is obtained. Scrub a small section of the upholstery at a time, using a stiff bristle brush and a quantity of suds and working with a circular motion. Scrape off suds and rinse with weak salt water solution, applied with a soft rag. Wipe long pile fabric in the direction of the nap.

Restore varnished surfaces turned white from water or hot dishes by rubbing lightly with a piece of flannel dampened in spirits of camphor or essence of peppermint. After a few moments, apply a good wax furniture polish, but postpone rubbing until dry.

Remove white spots from wax finishes by sponging with turpentine and applying fresh wax as soon as the turpentine fumes have evaporated.

Small dents in wood furniture are best removed by applying warm water, then folding a piece of brown kraft paper five or six times, soaking the paper in warm water and laying it on the dent. Apply a warm iron to the paper until dry. If the dent is not gone, repeat the process.

Termites Cause Heavy Damage Every Year

TERMITES in the U.S. are feasting and increasing at an alarming rate. Last year alone these insects gorged themselves on an estimated $250,000,000 worth of property in this country — up two and a half times their rate of destruction ten years ago.

Experts offer a variety of reasons for the devastating increase. They point out that the generally milder winters in northern parts of the country create more favorable conditions for termite life.

Then, too, the common practice of clearing wooded areas for home construction encourages the termites to take food and shelter in private residences where formerly they inhabited the trees. A third reason might be the rising practice of building homes on a low slab with no basements, giving termites relatively easy access to the building.

Many varieties of termites build their nests far into the ground below the frost level so their extermination is virtually impossible. However, there are two widely-applied methods of termite control — proper insulation of the home and chemical treatment of the soil.

Hard surfacing materials like ceramic tile are recommended as insurance against termites when finishing a basement or for the lower floor where there is no basement. This discourages termites from entering the home, because they cannot bore through real tile.

Ceramic tile also furnishes additional protection even on upper stories, especially for baths and kitchens where the interior is frequently subjected to moisture. By preventing moisture from entering the walls, ceramic tile holds down interior dampness.

These facts, added to real tile's beauty and variety of colors and shapes, account for much of tile's increased use in this country, and also its widespread use in the tropics where heat and moisture make termites and other insects among the greatest obstacles to pleasurable living.

Treatment For Your Home

ONE WAY TO improve both your house and yard at the same time is to replace your old, worn-out wood hatchway covering your outside steps from the basement with a water-tight, all-steel unit available at building supply yards.

Basement doors can be assembled in a few minutes, and the average home handyman can remove his old unit and install the new one in about four hours.

The new hatchway can be painted the same color as the house, and it will add a neat, trim appearance to your rear lawn.

Easy Access Plus Beauty Present Here

HERE is a popular tri-level featuring the spaciousness of colonial architecture without the inconvenience of long flights of stairs!

Construction is mainly wood siding with field stone trim. The cantilevered front bedrooms, overhanging roof plus a wide picture window add charm to the exterior.

Its three levels are divided into work, living and sleeping areas with emphasis on easy access and step-saving housekeeping.

First level entry hall serves as "buffer" giving privacy and good traffic circulation to all parts of the house. A large guest closet here features built-in shelves on either side—ideal for books and plants or a telephone.

Living room has a large picture window and wide wall areas for furniture placement. Dining well is well lighted and convenient for formal dining.

Kitchen adjoins the dining room and has a door leading to the rear porch ideal for those meals outdoors. This area is large enough to allow eating space in the kitchen. Windows over the sink permits plenty of light as well as allowing Mom to keep an eye on the children at play. Plenty of cabinet and counter space here and truly designed to save steps for the homemaker.

Garage and laundry-utility room are located a few steps below the main level. Laundry has front window with the furnace and water heater located

Much-Needed Space Provided By Dormer

ONCE upon a time people moved when they outgrew their homes. Nowadays they modernize attics or basements, add rooms, convert garages, into year round living quarters or build dormers.

A dormer is probably the least expensive way to add the most useable living space. By following simplified directions now available in a 50 cent home improvement book, anyone can either do it himself, work alongside a carpenter or handyman or contract the job.

Since the book tells what materials are required, where and when each piece of lumber is used, all the mystery usually associated with a job of this kind is eliminated.

Even the most unskilled person who spends an hour or two reading through this easy-to-follow home improvement book gets a clear picture of every step of construction. This permits him to talk like a "pro" when discussing costs with a carpenter or contractor. This also insures getting estimates that are closer to the real value of the job.

The book "How To Build A Dormer" assumes the reader knows nothing about doing this kind of work and explains every step in language everyone can easily follow. It explains how to plan size of dormer, where to locate it, how to build front wall frame, remove and reuse shingles, rafters, etc.

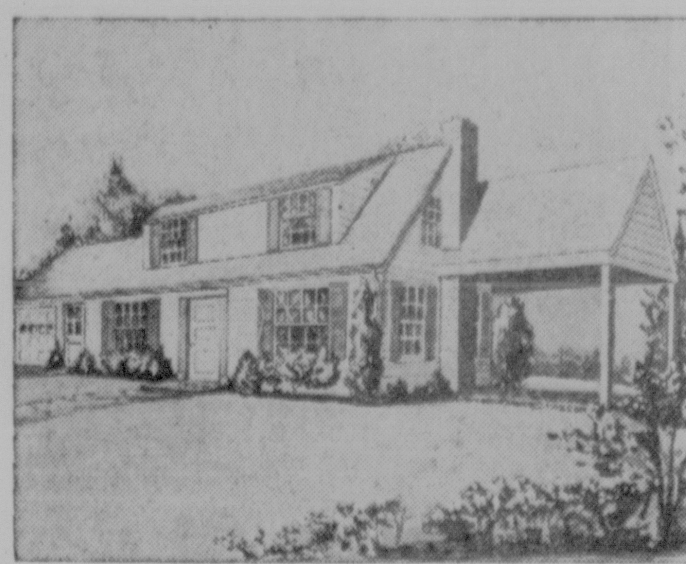

Every homeowner who takes an interest in repairing, maintaining or improving his home will be interested in this new series of home improvement books that explains all, in simplified directions and step-by-step illustrations.

Dormer Book 603 is 50 cents. Send coin, check or money order to The Daily Record, P. O. Box 215, Pleasantville, N. Y. Send 35 cents additional for 64-page catalog illustrating over 300 other build-it-yourself pattern projects.

at the rear. A door leads into the garage, which in turn has a rear door to the yard.

Above this area is the sleeping wing. Three spacious bedrooms with ample closets and good ventilation. Bath has built-in vanity and services all three bedrooms as well as the main level of the house. A linen closet is located in the hallway.

This plan conforms to general FHA, VA and Building Code requirements. You can obtain the building plans and specifications with material list and plan study kit telling how to read plans, obtain cost and finance this home.

Ceiling Should Be Just As Colorful As Walls

GO OVER your head in color! Painting the ceiling a contrasting color can make a wonderful change in a room, even if you do not repaint or redecorate any other area. There's no reason why a room's ceiling shouldn't be as colorful and exciting as its walls; in fact, there are several reasons why it should be.

A ceiling painted in color extends the decor to a surface which is just as apparent and important as the rest of the room, and enhances the overall harmony of the color scheme. However, you can use more color abandon on the ceiling than on the walls.

Walls painted shocking pink can be distracting; the ceiling painted the same hue can be distinctive. Even when a room's small size prohibits the use of vivid colors for walls and furnishings, its ceiling can still be painted a dramatic color.

A colorful ceiling can tone down an overly bright room and lighten a dark room. In many modern homes, oversized windows practically form an entire wall of glass. By painting the ceiling and the wall directly opposite the glass expanse a deep color, preferably one of the cool blue and green families, the sun-drenched room will lose its glare and gain a more dramatic appearance.

On the other hand, painting the ceiling of a dark room in a light, sunny hue, such as pink, yellow or melon, will provide a satisfactory amount of light reflectivity and produce a warm glow which white cannot achieve.

Painting a low ceiling in a delicate tint will give it sufficient height and much more eye-appeal than painting it white, while a too-high ceiling will assume a lower appearance when painted a darker color than the walls. A ceiling painted one of the aqua, blue or green hues will bring out the rich beauty of wood paneled walls.

Fabric covered walls often become monotonous before it is practical to redo them, and a colorful new ceiling will generate a welcome freshness into the room. Where furniture fabrics of many colors or busy patterns make conservative neutral walls the most suitable choice, painting the ceiling a distinctive hue will radiate a more interesting effect throughout the room.

2 Million Acres Of Trees Planted

FORESTS have a remarkable capacity to regenerate themselves, starting seedlings to replace the mature trees, which have been harvested to make useful products or have succumbed to disease, insects and age.

In some tracts, however, new trees fail to take hold, and woodland owners carry on a costly seeding and hand planting program. In 1960, more than 2,100,000 acres were planted to trees by man. Five Southern states, Georgia, Florida, Louisiana, South Carolina, Alabama and Mississippi, led the list.

Buy Home Now, Beat Inflation

HOME prices may never again be as cheap as they will be in 1961, a prominent national lumber leader declares.

Inflation, says H. V. Simpson, executive head of West Coast Lumbermen's Association, may be more rapid in the next few years with the threat of deficit government financing already part of the new administration's program.

Labor and material costs, the lumberman reports, will climb as the insidious efforts of inflation permeate our economic life. That means, he said, that the cost of new homes is bound to go up and up.

If any family is planning on buying a home, Simpson urged, they should buy this year. It will prove to be the best investment they have ever made—because the value of their home will increase as the cost of replacing it goes up.

Simpson said home prices are down now as the result of the year-long recession which the building industry has just gone through. These same prices will start climbing again when the cost of material and labor go up.

For Children

A JUNGLE jim made of odd scraps of lumber to create a climbing and crawling puzzle for children will help keep them home.

Fastens Well

WOOD and lumber has no peer in its ability to hold common fasteners like nails and screws. It works equally well with glues and adhesives.

Nature And Color

THE NEW look garden uses the bright colors of modern plastic panels set in frames of long-lasting western red cedar to make interesting screening fences.

Lumber Grading

LUMBER is graded according to its appearance and strength. Appearance grades are generally for interior finish or for exterior siding and trim. Strength grades are determined primarily on the stress factors they develop.

A ROOM DIVIDER-storage unit paneled in hand-some knotty pine wood keeps this kitchen from being closed-in. The open plan, where eating and cooking areas flow together, permits a greater degree of informality in family dining.

Efficient Kitchen Is Mom's Wish

NOW is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their family.

Which is simply by way of suggesting that meal time is family time, and meal time can be a happier time if mother has prepared said repast in an efficient kitchen.

It is quite surprising to find that even "modern" kitchens are not really modern. Many of the relatively new kitchen that might profit by a bit of remodeling.

First of all, a kitchen that's right for one family may not necessarily do for another. Further, though it may have served past needs, it may not suit a family's present size and shape.

If there are several chefs in the family, and each prefers to work in isolated concentration, then several work areas would be in order.

And with the advent of appliance units, used in conjunction with built-ins of western pine region wood, multiple work areas are eminently feasible.

Ovens can be built into the wall, with cabinets and work surface accessible, while cooking surface, with accompanying chopping block and even its own sink, can form an efficient island.

Cabinets of easy-to-handle wood such as odorous and tasteless white fir can be designed to accommodate the utensils and canned goods of the particular family.

If the chief cook and bottle washer likes company while she's busy about the kitchen, then an open plan, part family room-kitchen would suit her to a "T".

But, the Western Pine Assn. suggests that before any remodeling steps are taken a careful check of local building codes should be made, in order to avoid costly errors.

And then, once the coast is clear, go to it, because what it all boils down to is the fact that modern appliances or no modern appliances, much home-making time is spent in the kitchen and that time ought to be as pleasant as possible.

U. S. Tree Farms Insure Future

TREE farms, dedicated to sound growing, protecting and harvesting of timber, are one reason why ample supplies seem assured for the nation's future needs.

More than 20,000 owners of private, taxpaying woodland are managing 55 million acres under the guidance of trained foresters, and certified under rules of the American tree farm program.

While 1961 brings the second annual National Forest Products Week—October 15 to 21—the year also marks the 20th anniversary of tree farms. Today only Kansas among the 48 contiguous states has no tree farms, though the Sunflower state may be plotting to make 2x4s from super cornstalks.

The tree farm program was begun in Washington in 1941, but that state stands fifth in certified acreages today, behind Alabama, Florida, Georgia and Oregon. The South contains two-thirds of U. S. tree farm acreage.

EFFICIENCY and beauty are the main characteristics of this kitchen whose plan might serve as a model in the revamping of an ineffectual kitchen. The combination of built-in appliances and easy-care wood used along the walls and for the island work area make for pleasant meal-preparation.

Downspout Locations Important

PROPER sizing and placement of downspout conductor pipes is essential to a correct roof drainage system.

Downspouts should be located at the ends or outside corners of roof gutters, the Roof Drainage Manufacturers Institute warns. If sized too small, they can't handle water flow and the back-up causes overflowing gutters.

Gutters should be sloped about one inch in sixteen feet toward a downspout to insure proper drainage. Gutter size depends on roof pitch and area to be drained.

Style and slope of the gutters, number, location and size of conductor pipes also helps determine how big gutters must be.

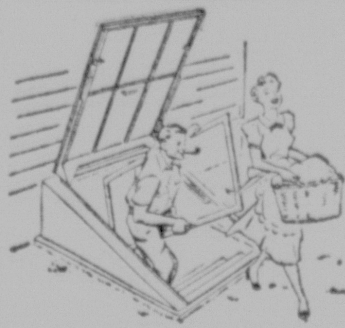

Outer edge of the gutter should be installed below the roof line extension to protect it from rain, snow and ice damage.

Remember, roof drainage problems can be avoided if you check your gutters and downspouts twice a year.

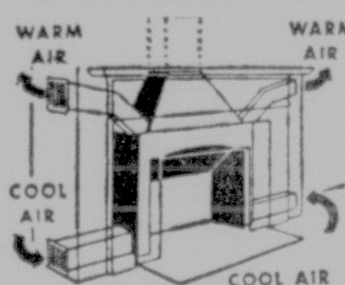

Look for damaged areas; supports may be loose or gutter edges slipping; etc.

It's important to regularly clean out all leaves, branches and other debris that clog gutters and downspouts.

Useful Decoration

A GOOD many hillside homes have window cleaning problems and the way some smart architects have solved this problem is to design a small cat-walk wood deck along the hillside of the house below the windows. This deck, generally made of Douglas fir 2x4s, is not only mighty useful but decorative as well.

More Lumber

MORE lumber is used in America than in any other nation, though Canada and New Zealand boast a greater consumption per person. The average American uses twice as much lumber as a Russian, four times as much as an Englishman and six times as much as a Frenchman.

Painting Prevents Accidents

BY USING paint to warn against dangerous areas in your home you can make it a safer place for yourself and your family. This is particularly important because 41 per cent of the 46,000,000 accidents that occur every year happen in the home.

Last year there was a disabling home injury every eight seconds and an accidental death every twenty minutes.

With falls killing 11,000 people a year, paint and proper lighting can help to make stairs less treacherous. It's a good idea to paint stripes on basement stairs, using eye-catching orange and black, yellow and black or black and white.

Striping is easy: first paint the entire step the lighter color, using tough floor enamel. When the paint has dried thoroughly, use masking tape to make a striped pattern and paint the exposed area black.

After this coat has dried, strip off the tape, and there are the stripes. If you feel that such a bold pattern will detract from the appearance of a finished basement, then enamel the bottom step in a light color that fits in with the color scheme of the basement.

Walls of dark, enclosed stairwells anywhere in the house should be painted white, ivory or yellow—the colors with the highest reflective power—and should be well illuminated. This is especially true where there are older people in the family; they are the most frequent fall victims.

Call attention to raised thresholds by enameling them in a light color.

Low pipes in basements and garage doors that slide into the roof can produce concussions and skull fractures. Call attention to them with paint. Yellow has the highest visibility, so use it for the basement pipes, either solidly or in a striped pattern. Use yellow, too, to outline the bottom edges of the garage doors.

Driveways that are not lighted can be made more visible at night by outlining them with rocks painted white or with fluorescent paint. Gates and posts marking entranceways should have the same treatment.

Washroom Ideal For Basement

LOOKING for an extra washroom? Don't forget the basement area, suggests the Institute of Home Designers.

It says that the average home-owner over-estimates how much space is needed for a washroom, and that a washbasin and water-closet can easily be fitted into an area 4 feet by 4 feet.

Basements make a good location for an extra bathroom because it generally is easy to hook into existing plumbing there. This area also provides an excellent mud-room for

Build Garden Structures Now

SEPTEMBER is a good month to start any major garden construction so that it can be put in place before winter rains and snow interfere.

Wood decks that are not connected with the house, or which are located in a far corner of the garden, can be built now of new lumber and allowed to weather over the winter.

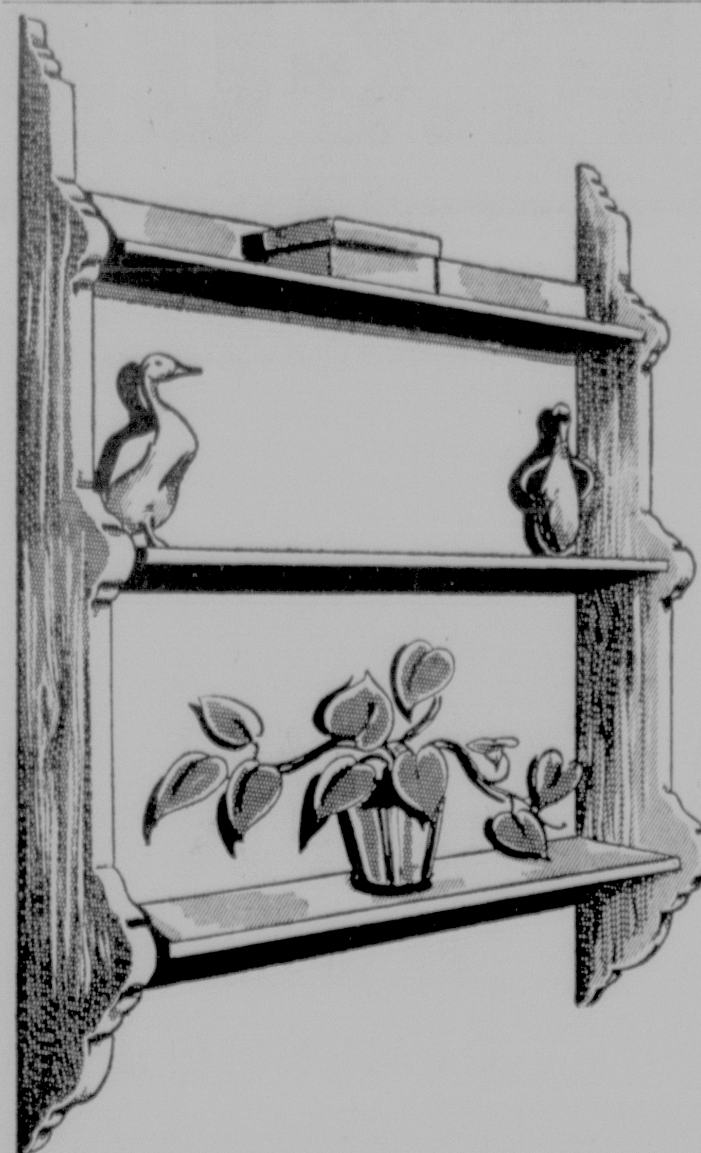

Some garden corners are hard to handle, and won't grow grass successfully. These are the spots where a raised wood deck makes an ideal garden retreat. The decks can be large or small, depending on need. They can be tucked in around a tree or trees, in a fence corner, beside a creek, against a far fence. Decks like this are easy to build. A firm foundation of 4x4 Douglas fir posts set on concrete piers makes a good beginning. Then a framework of fir joists which can be any size from 2x6 to 2x12 depending on weight they will have to carry, forms the perfect support.

The deck can be either 2x4s or 2x6s which can be laid flat with spacing for rain runoff. The 2x4s can also be laid on edge with the spacing recommended.

A low bench can be built around one or more edges of the deck and a back rest can be built for the bench if desired.

The best advice from garden planning experts is to keep it simple with a minimum of upkeep required.

Wallpiece Is Decorative

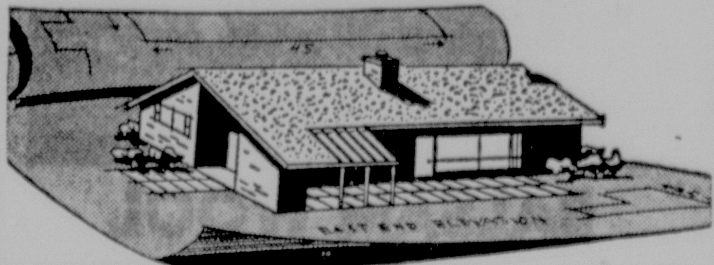

ALMOST every woman gets great satisfaction from displaying her treasured curios or small antique objects in the best possible setting. Even though these are small possessions, the owner cherishes them almost as much as if they were priceless objects d'art and likes to show them off to good advantage.

The charming colonial shelf shown here is an ideal place to exhibit miniatures, china or other appropriate objects. But this whatnot can also serve in many other parts of the house, such as over the stove for herbs and seasonings, over a lad's reading table for his favorite books, over the little table in the hall for a collection of plants, or for any number of other purposes.

Making this distinctive shelf is easy for beginner or skilled worker. The full-size pattern offered below eliminates all guesswork for each step is clearly outlined in the detailed instructions. All you do is trace pattern on wood, saw, assemble.
